Preface: About This Manual

In the early days of the web, one would frequently encounter pages highlighted with the phrase “Under Construction” along with some icon, at varying levels of cleverness, invoking roadwork, . These have become less frequent since as the norms of the Web evolved, and the community came to collectively recognize that almost every web site is always “Under construction.”

As is this manual. The CAMEO system has been a work-in-progress since it began in 2000, and this manual has been an effort to track and codify those efforts, but is now, and always has been, a working document that has been primarily intended to be used internally at the event data projects first at Kansas, and then at Penn State. Nonetheless, it has information that other people have found useful, and given that one of the first things that seems to get lost in coding projects is the manual, making an imperfect manual available seemed to be the better course of action than waiting to write the perfect manual.

Over the years, we have tried to make it more systematic, and in fact parts have gone through extensive re-writes. But other parts—notably a number of the region-specific codes—weren’t really finished (or, to an extent, have been superseded) but still contained information we weren’t ready to throw out. The original event coding scheme, and the newer religious and ethnic classification schemes are quite systematic; the actor scheme is very uneven, and we are still working on a separate section on agents.

It is what is it.

Chapter 1

Introduction

For several decades, two coding frameworks dominated event data research: Charles McClelland’s WEIS [8, 9] and the Conflict and Peace Data Bank (COPDAB) developed by Edward Azar [3, 1, 2]. Both were created during the Cold War and assumed a “Westphalian–Clausewitzian” political world in which sovereign states reacted to each other primarily through official diplomacy and military threats. While innovative when first created, these coding systems are not optimal for dealing with contemporary issues such as ethnic conflict, low-intensity violence, organized criminal activity, and multilateral intervention. McClelland [10, pg. 177] viewed WEIS as only a “first phase”; he certainly did not anticipate that it would continue to be used, with only minor modifications, for four decades.

CAMEO was originally intended merely to support an NSF-funded project on the study of inter-state conflict mediation. It was also originally intended to be finished in six months of part-time work. It has, instead, developed as a “next generation” coding scheme designed both to correct some of the long-recognized problems in WEIS and COPDAB, but more importantly, designed both for automated coding and for the detailed coding of sub-state actors. The system was used extensively in the DARPA-funded Integrated Conflict Early Warning System (ICEWS) project [11] and proved surprisingly robust in that environment. Additional detail on the development of the system can be found in

1.0.1 Events

Event categories present in WEIS and COPDAB have both conceptual and practical shortcomings. For instance, WEIS has only a single subcategory for “Military engagement” that must encompass everything from a shot fired at a border patrol to the strategic bombing of cities. COPDAB contains just 16 event categories, spanning a conflict-cooperation continuum that many researchers consider inappropriate. Although there have been efforts to create alternative coding systems—most notably Lengs Behavioral Correlates of War (BCOW) [7]—WEIS and COPDAB remain the predominant frameworks in the published literature.

The lock-in of these early coding systems is readily explained by the time consuming nature of human event coding from paper and microfilm sources. Because human coders typically produce between five and ten events per hour, and a large data set contains tens of thousands of events, experimental recoding is simply not feasible. Established protocols for training and maintaining consistency among coders further constrained efforts to improve WEIS and COPDAB once these were institutionalized. As a consequence, endeavors such as Tomlinson's modification of WEIS [16] and the Global Event Data System (GEDS) project extensions of COPDAB [6] produced only marginal changes.

In contrast to human coding, automated coding allows researchers to experiment with alternative coding rules that reflect a particular theoretical perspective or interest in a specific set of issues. The effort involved in implementing a new or modified coding system, once it has been developed, is relatively small because most of the work can be done within the dictionary of verb phrases. In most cases verb phrases can be unambiguously assigned to appropriate new categories, while obscure phrases are either removed or modified. This elimination of questionable phrases itself represents an improvement in the coding system. Even a long series of texts spanning multiple decades can then be recoded in a few minutes. This allows researchers to focus on maximizing the validity of the coding scheme for their particular research program since the automated coding process itself guarantees the reliability of the system. Consequently in the mid-1990s, the Protocol for the Analysis of Nonviolent Direct Action (PANDA) [4] was developed in an initial experiment with the combination of automated coding and a new ontology focused on sub-state actors, followed by the development of the Integrated Data for Events Analysis (IDEA) [5] system, designed as a super-set of several existing ontologies along with innovations such as the use of tertiary (4-digit) event categories and codes for non-human events such as natural disasters.

In the early stages of the KEDS research, we felt it was important to work with an existing framework so that we could directly compare human-coded and machine-coded data [14]. For a variety of reasons, we selected WEIS, which despite some obvious drawbacks was good enough for our initial analyses. However, we eventually decided to abandon WEIS. Several considerations motivated this choice. First and foremost was our long-standing concern regarding numerous ambiguities, overlaps, and gaps within the WEIS framework. In addition, the distribution of events in WEIS is quite irregular and several of the 2-digit cue categories generate almost no events; we hoped we could improve on this. Third, we wanted to eliminate distinctions among actions that, while analytically discrete, could not be consistently and reliably differentiated using existing news source materials. Finally, as indicated above, the Cold War perspective that permeates WEIS makes it an inappropriate tool for studying contemporary international interactions. Consequently, we developed CAMEO, which is specifically designed to code events relevant to the mediation of violent conflict but can also be used for studying other types of international interactions.

Problems encountered with WEIS are exacerbated due to the lack of a fully specified standard codebook. We based our development of coding dictionaries on the version of the WEIS codebook available through the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) [9]. The section of the codebook dealing with event categories is quite short—about five pages—and provides only limited guidance. Since McClelland never intended that WEIS would become a de facto coding standard, the ICPSR WEIS codebook was meant to be primarily a proof-of-concept.

We initially intended CAMEO to be an extension of WEIS. Consequently, the first phase of the development of CAMEO involved adding cue and subcategories that we found theoretically necessary for the study of mediation and conflict, while keeping most of the WEIS framework intact. The next phase involved looking for examples of each category and writing definitions for the codebook. This process led to the realization that some of the distinctions we wanted to make for theoretical reasons were simply not possible given the nature of the news leads.

For instance, Promise (WEIS 07) is almost indistinguishable from Agree (WEIS 08) unless the word “promise” is used in the sentence. Therefore, we eventually ended up merging the two into a single cue category—Agree (CAMEO 06)—that includes codes representing all forms of future positive commitment. Similarly, because verbs such as call for, ask for, propose, appeal, petition, suggest, offer, and urge are used interchangeably in news leads to refer to closely related activities, we combined Request and Propose into a single cue category—Request/Propose (CAMEO 05).

We made similar decisions with respect to other WEIS categories such as Grant and Reward, and Warn and Threaten. We also rearranged the WEIS subcategories, both to reflect these changes and to create more coherent cue categories. As a result, Nonmilitary demonstration (WEIS 181) is now part of cue category Protest (CAMEO 14) as Demonstrate (CAMEO 141) while Armed force mobilization, exercise and/or displays (WEIS 182) is modified and falls under the new cue category Exhibit Military Power (CAMEO 15).

While developing CAMEO, we paid significant attention to creating a conceptually coherent and complete coding scheme. Having the cue category of Approve (CAMEO 03), therefore, necessitated the addition of Disapprove (CAMEO 11), which incorporated Accuse (WEIS 12) and our new addition Protest officially (CAMEO 113). Maintaining the cue category of Reduce Relations from WEIS, albeit in a modified fashion, directed us to create a parallel category that captures improvements in relations: Cooperate (CAMEO 04). In other words, we tried to insure that conceptual opposites of each cue and subcategory exist within the coding scheme, although they might not be represented by exact antonyms. We also revised or eliminated all actor-specific event codes: that is, codes that were dependent on who was engaged in the event, not just what was being done.

In addition, we made CAMEO consistent with respect to the numerical order of its main cue categories. Unlike WEIS and IDEA, we start with the most neutral events and move gradually from cooperation to conflict categories. While the initial coding category in WEIS and IDEA is Yield, CAMEO starts with Comment and locates Yield between Provide Aid (CAMEO 07) and Investigate (CAMEO 09). Technically, all three of these systems use nominal categories so that the placement of each category is irrelevant; in reality, however, the categories are often treated as ordinal or even interval variables. Therefore, CAMEO categories have an ordinal increase in cooperation as one goes from category 01 to 09, and an ordinal increase in conflict as one goes from 10 to 20.

Finally, we developed a formal codebook for CAMEO with descriptions and extensive examples for each category. Following the model of the IDEA codebook, the CAMEO codebook exists in both printed and web-based formats. We have also followed the lead of IDEA in introducing 4-digit tertiary subcategories that focus on very specific types of behavior, differentiating, for instance, between agreement to, or rejection of, cease-fire, peacekeeping, and conflict settlement. We anticipate that the tertiary categories will be used only rarely, not be used but they are available if a researcher wants to examine some very specific behaviors that might be useful in defining patterns. The tertiary categories also clarify further the types of event forms included in the secondary and primary categories, leading to more precise and inclusive coding.

Despite CAMEO originally being intended specifically to code events dealing with international mediation, it has worked well as a general coding scheme for studying political conflict. This is probably due to the fact that while CAMEO was originally going to involve a minor, six-month revision of WEIS for a single NSF grant, we ended up spending almost three years on the project, with several complete reviews of the dictionaries, and hence effectively created a more comprehensive ontology.

Somewhat to our surprise, the .verbs dictionaries—which involved about 15,000 phrases—also needed relatively little work to produce useable data for ICEWS. This was surprising in the sense that those dictionaries had been developed for an entirely different part of the world than was coded for ICEWS, but was consistent with our earlier experiments in extending the data sets, which have always used a shared .verbs dictionary despite using specialized .actors dictionaries. We did one experiment where we looked at a sample of sentences where TABARI had not identified a verb phrase, and this produced a few new candidate phrases, but only a few.

In the long run, it might be possible to re-define the entire CAMEO coding ontology using the standardized WordNet synsets, rather than using the current categories that were developed inductively. This would again help align the event coding with the larger NLP community, and probably simplify its use in languages other than English.

1.0.2 Actors

One of the major changes in the post-Cold War environment has been the emergence of sub-state actors as major forces in both domestic and international politics. Many have argued that the proliferation of sub-state, non-state, multi-state, and trans-state actors has blurred almost completely the traditional separation of “international” and “comparative” politics. At times these groups exercise coercive force equal to or greater than that of states, whether from within, as in the case of “failed states”, or across borders, as with Israel’s attempts to control Hizbollah in Lebanon and Hamas in Gaza, or the near irrelevance of borders in many of the conflicts in central and western Africa. Irrespective of the effectiveness of their coercive power, these non-state actors may also be a source of identity that is more important than that of an individual’s state-affiliation—the ability of al-Qaeda to attract adherents from across the Islamic world is a good example—or provide examples of strategies that are imitated across borders, as has been seen in the numerous non-violent popular revolutions in Eastern Europe or the more recent “Arab Spring.”

Because they were state-centered, WEIS and COPDAB paid relatively little attention to non-state actors. A small number of long-lived opposition groups that were active in the 1960s such as the Irish Republican Army, the Palestine Liberation Organization, and the National Liberation Front of Vietnam (Viet Cong) were given state-like codes, as were major international organizations such as the United Nations and the International Committee of the Red Cross/Red Crescent. From the perspective of coding, these actors were treated as honorary states. Beyond this small number of special cases, sub- and non-state actors were ignored.

A major breakthrough in the systematic coding of sub-state actors came with the PANDA project [4], which introduced the concept of sub-state “agents”—e.g. media, politicians, labor unions—as part of their standard actor coding. PANDA’s primary focus was on contentious politics within states, and consequently needed to distinguish, for example, between police and demonstrators, or between government and opposition political parties.

Unlike PANDA, which coded the entire world, the KEDS project focused specifically on regions that have experienced protracted conflicts. As a consequence, rather than using the PANDA/IDEA of introducing new agent fields, we initially maintained the WEIS/COPDAB convention of using a single “source” and “target” field. However, because the areas we were coding involved quite a few sub-state actors, we eventually developed a series of standard codes that were initially a composite of the WEIS nation-state codes concatenated with PANDA agent codes. Under this system, for example, ISRMIL would be “Israel military”, “LIBOPP” would be Liberian opposition parties, “SIEGOV” would be Sierra Leone government and so forth. After realizing that the simple actor-agent model did not accommodate all of the actors we wished to code, we extended this to a more general hierarchical system that was adopted, with modifications, by ICEWS.

Three principles underlie the CAMEO actor coding system. First, codes are composed of one or more three-character elements: In the present system a code can consist of one, two or three of these elements (and therefore three, six, or nine character codes), although this may be extended later. These code elements are classified into a number of broad categories, such as state actors, sub-state actor roles, regions, and ethnic groups.

Second, the codes are interpreted hierarchically: The allowable code in the second element depends on the content of the first element, and the third element depends on the second. This is in contrast to a rectangular coding system, where the second and third elements would always have the same content. The most familiar analogy to a hierarchical coding system is the Library of Congress cataloguing system, where the elements of the catalog number vary—systematically—depending on the nature of the item being catalogued, and consequently may contain very different information despite being part of a single system. The event coding system used in BCOW [7] is another example of a hierarchical scheme in the event data literature.

Third, we are basing our work on standardized codes whenever these are available. This is most obvious in our use of the United Nations nation-state codes (ISO-3166-1 ALPHA 3) (<http://unstats.un.org/unsd/methods/m49/m49alpha.htm>). This contrasts to the Russett-Singer-Small codes [12] used in WEIS, which are specific to the North American quantitative international relations community. We have generally adopted the IDEA agent codes for sub-state actors. We originally used the HURIDOCs (<http://www.huridocs.org/>) classifications for world religions, but subsequently expanded this to the much more comprehensive and systematic list found in the CAMEO “Religious Classification System.” Similarly, we were unable to locate any systematic list of ethnic minority groups, and instead assembled our own from various sources.

Unfortunately, standard codes are generally not available. For example, most IGOs are known by acronyms of varying lengths, so we need to decide how to truncate these to three characters. We spent considerable time trying to determine whether the U.S. government had a standard list of militarized non-state actors; as best we can tell, this does not exist (or at least not in a form we can access), and the situation for ethnic groups is similar.

Usage Notes	This residual category is not coded except when distinctions among 011 to 017 cannot be made. Note that statements are typically subordinate events; events such as comments are coded as mere statements only when they do not further imply appeals, agreements, support, apologies, demands, disapprovals, rejections, threats, etc.
Example	U.S. military chief General Colin Powell said on Wednesday NATO would need to remain strong.
CAMEO	011
Name	Decline comment
Description	Explicitly decline or refuse to comment on a situation.
Usage Notes	This event form is a verbal act. The target could be who the source actor declines to make a comment to or about.
Example	NATO on Monday declined to comment on an estimate that Yugoslav army and special police troops in Kosovo were losing 90 to 100 dead per day in NATO air strikes.

CAMEO	012
Name	Make pessimistic comment
Description	Express pessimism, negative outlook.
Usage Notes	This event form is a verbal act. Only statements with explicit pessimistic components should be coded as 012; otherwise, default to 010.
Example	Former West Germany Chancellor Willy Brandt said in a radio interview broadcast today he was skeptical over Moscow's will to agree on limiting European-based nuclear weapons.
Example	Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak said Friday he was very pessimistic about the chances of resuming peace talks with Syria, Israel radio reported.
CAMEO	013
Name	Make optimistic comment
Description	Express optimism, assurance, confidence.
Usage Notes	This event form is a verbal act. Only statements with explicit optimistic components should be coded as 013; otherwise, default to 010.
Example	Turkish President Turgut Ozal said on Wednesday he was confident that the United States would remove irritants damaging relations between the two NATO allies.
Example	The European Community said on Thursday it hoped the lifting of martial law in Beijing would lead to an improvement in human rights.
CAMEO	014
Name	Consider policy option
Description	Review, reflect upon, or study policy option.
Usage Notes	This event form is typically, although not exclusively, a verbal act. There is no limitation on types of policies that could be under consideration.
Example	Europe's leading security forum is exploring the possibility of international patrols to monitor the former Yugoslav republic of Macedonia's border with Serbia, its envoy said on Friday.
Example	Malaysia is considering giving money to 20,000 Vietnamese boat people in the country to entice them to return home, foreign minister said on Tuesday.
CAMEO	015
Name	Acknowledge or claim responsibility
Description	Non-apologetically claim responsibility, admit an error or wrongdoing, or retract a statement without expression of remorse.
Usage Notes	This event form is a verbal act. Remorseful acknowledgements should be coded as 'Apologize' (055) instead.
Example	A Damascus-based Palestinian guerrilla group claimed responsibility on Saturday for attacks on Israeli troops from Jordan in the past two days.

CAMEO	016
Name	Reject accusation, deny responsibility
Description	Discard or deny accusations or charges.
Usage Notes	This event form is a verbal act. The target for this event type is the party that introduces some accusation or charge against the source actor who denies responsibility.
Example	The government of Liberia denied on Thursday charges by Ivory Coast that Monrovia is committing genocide.
Example	South Korea on Friday rejected as “totally baseless” accusations by Amnesty International that it had carried out mass arrests of political prisoners, but church human rights groups here supported the accusations.
CAMEO	017
Name	Engage in symbolic act
Description	Engage in symbolic activities such as holding vigils, attending funerals, and laying wreath.
Usage Notes	Use this event form for all symbolic acts, including those that imply empathy. Use 018 to code only empathetic comments (i.e. not actions).
CAMEO	018
Name	Make empathetic comment
Description	Express empathy, condolences, sympathy, understanding.
Usage Notes	This event form refers exclusively to verbal acts or comments. Empathetic and other symbolic actions should be coded as 017 instead.
Example	Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali on Saturday expressed condolences to the United States for the death of three American diplomats.
CAMEO	019
Name	Express accord
Description	Express common understanding, agreement, or accord.
Usage Notes	This event form refers exclusively to verbal acts or comments. Use this code when actors indicate that they simply agree or concur on an issue but do not imply commitment or intent to cooperate on that issue. These are typically reciprocal events (see example below) and require coding of more than one 019 event with actors reversed.
Example	President Reagan and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak agreed today there was an urgent need for progress towards a Middle East settlement and that a freeze on Israeli settlements in occupied territories was also needed.
Example Note	Two reciprocal events (both 019) are coded with actors reversed.

2.2 APPEAL

CAMEO	020
Name	Make an appeal or request, not specified below
Description	All requests, proposals, suggestions and appeals not otherwise specified.
Usage Notes	This residual category is not coded except when distinctions among 021 through 028 cannot be made. Events coded under this category refer to pleas made either on the source actor's own behalf or on behalf of another party (i.e. the source asks that the target does something either for self or for a third party). Note that this and all the subcategories are distinct from demands, which are more forceful, and from pledges, which imply commitments, agreements, or promises on the part of the source actor.
CAMEO	021
Name	Appeal for material cooperation
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest material cooperation.
Usage Notes	This event form is typically, though not exclusively, a verbal act. It refers to appeals for material cooperation specifically; appeals for diplomatic cooperation, such as for the provision of support on a particular policy, are coded as 022 instead. (Note that the actual events of material cooperation are coded under category 06.)
Example	Kenyan President Daniel Arap Moi on Monday urged Uganda to repatriate "all Kenyan criminals hiding there" to face trial, accusing them of killing Kenyan policemen in cross-border raids recently.
Example	Outspoken Serbian ultra-nationalist leader Vojislav Seselj called on Arab countries to join forces against a possible US-led attack on Iraq, Tanjug news agency reported Wednesday.
CAMEO	0211
Name	Appeal for economic cooperation
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest initiating or expanding economic ties.
Usage Notes	Use this code for requests to develop or expand trade and other forms of economic exchange. Appeals for provision of economic aid-not mutual exchange-are coded as 0231 instead. Actual events of economic cooperation are coded as 061.
Example	Indian business leaders Friday called for greater impetus towards free trade despite mounting tensions between India and Pakistan.

CAMEO	0212
Name	Appeal for military cooperation
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest initiating or expanding military ties.
Usage Notes	Use this code for requests to develop or expand military relations by engaging in acts such as joint military maneuvers or exercises. Appeals for provision of military aid-not mutual exchange-are coded as 0232 instead. Actual events of military cooperation are coded as 062.
Example	South Korea has requested to lease a Russian military training ground, military officers in Seoul said on Thursday.
CAMEO	0213

Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest initiating or expanding cooperation in judicial matters.
Usage Notes	Use this code for requests to develop or expand cooperation in such matters as extraditions. Appeals for information or other investigative tools, even if to be used in courts of law, are coded as 0214 instead. Note that in case of extraditions, the target for this event type is not the subject but the country he would be extradited to. Actual events of judicial cooperation are coded as 063.
Example	Turkey renewed an appeal to Belgium to extradite a far-left militant wanted for murder, Justice Minister Cemil Cicek said Thursday, slamming what he called lax international cooperation against terrorism.
CAMEO	0214
Name	Appeal for intelligence cooperation
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest sharing of intelligence.
Usage Notes	Use this code for requests to develop or expand intelligence and information sharing. Actual events of intelligence cooperation are coded as 064.

CAMEO	022
Name	Appeal for diplomatic cooperation (such as policy support)
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest expansion of diplomatic ties or cooperation.
Usage Notes	This event form is typically, although not exclusively, a verbal act. It refers to appeals for expanded diplomatic ties and non-tangible support on particular policies. Appeals for more specific forms of diplomacy, such as mediation and negotiation, are coded elsewhere within category 02.
Example	North Korean state media have called on the United States to forge “ties of confidence” with Pyongyang ahead of six-party nuclear talks expected to be held in Beijing on July 26.
Example	Charles Taylor called on Liberians to stand by him during these difficult days, “Soon this bad wind shall pass,” he moaned.

CAMEO	023
Name	Appeal for material aid, not specified below
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest provision of material assistance not otherwise specified.
Usage Notes	This category contains sub-forms for more detailed coding whenever possible. The source could be requesting aid for itself or on behalf of a third party; in either case, the actor whom the request is directed to should be coded as the target. Note that only requests for or suggestions of material aid are coded under this category; events coded under 023 imply neither the receipt or delivery of material aid nor a commitment on the part of the source actor to provide such aid. For the latter two cases, refer instead to categories 07 and 033, respectively.
Example	Romania has asked the European Community for immediate delivery of additional aid, EC sources said on Thursday.
CAMEO	0231
Name	Appeal for economic aid
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest economic assistance.
Usage Notes	This event form is typically, although not exclusively, a verbal act. Requests or suggestions for loans or debt relief are also coded here. Appeals for reciprocal economic exchange, such as trade, should be coded as 0212 instead. The source could be requesting support for itself or on behalf of another party.
Example	Russia and China will ask Asian banks to help finance construction of an $8 billion Trans-Siberian natural gas link to China.
Example Note	Because of the compound source (Russia and China), two events are coded.

CAMEO	0232
Name	Appeal for military aid.
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest military assistance.
Usage Notes	This event form is typically, although not exclusively, a verbal act. Requests for or suggestions of joint military actions, rather than unilateral military aid, should be coded as 0212 instead.
Example	Angola has asked Portugal for military aid , especially instructors for its Soviet- and Cuban-trained armed forces, a Lisbon newspaper said today.
CAMEO	0233
Name	Appeal for humanitarian aid
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest humanitarian assistance.

CAMEO	024
Name	Appeal for political reform, not specified below
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest political change not otherwise specified.
Usage Notes	This event form refers to verbal and non-threatening appeals. More forceful “demands” for political change are coded under 104; expressions that take the form of demonstrations, protests, etc. are coded under category 14. Source actors can be local citizens as well as international actors; they could be making the appeal on their own behalf or on behalf of others. Note that when the requested reform clearly constitutes some form of concession or yielding by the target such as the easing of administrative sanctions, a more appropriate ‘Appeal’ code might be found under 025.
Example	About 300 representatives from Egyptian civil society organizations submitted the most recent in a series of reform petitions , under the title “In Defense of the Nation” to the Saudi royal family .
Example	European ministers had called for Burma to institute reforms before joining the ASEAN.

Usage Notes	This event form refers to verbal and non-threatening appeals. More forceful “demands” for leadership change are coded as 1041; demonstrations, protests, etc. demanding change in leadership/power are coded under category 14. Note that even though calls for the target to resign or relinquish power are forms of yielding, they are still coded here. Also code appeals for elections here.

Example	The UN Security Council has called on Haiti’s interim government to hold elections by 7 February.

Usage Notes	This event form refers to verbal and non-threatening appeals. More forceful “demands” for policy change are coded as 1042; demonstrations, protests, etc. demanding change in leadership/power are coded under category 14. Just like the source actor, the policy in question can also be domestic or international in nature. If it is clear from the lead that by requesting certain policy changes the source is in fact appealing to the target to yield or concede, the event might be better coded under 035.
Example	U.S. President George W. Bush said Friday that he will tell Japanese Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi that Japan needs to enact significant economic reforms .
Example	Carl Bildt called for three urgent reforms in Swedish politics —tax reform, business reform and welfare reform—and stressed the creation of new jobs as the principal task for the future.

CAMEO	0243
Name	Appeal for rights
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest provision or expansion of social, political, or other rights.
Usage Notes	This event form refers to verbal and non-threatening appeals. More forceful “demands” for rights are coded as 1043; demonstrations, protests, etc. demanding certain rights are coded under category 14. If it is clear from the lead that by requesting certain rights the source is in fact appealing to the target to yield or concede, the event might be better coded under 025. Appeals for provision of compensation for previously violated rights, for instance, are coded as 025.
Example	The UN urged the Maoists rebels in Nepal to honor human rights, according to the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights (UNHCR).
Example	The international committee of the Lebanese Living Abroad movement is contacting a number of Lebanese legislatures to propose a new addendum incorporating the right to vote abroad into the electoral law adopted for the upcoming parliamentary elections.
CAMEO	0244
Name	Appeal for change in institutions, regime
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest major institutional, constitutional, or regime change.
Usage Notes	This event form refers to verbal and non-threatening appeals. More forceful “demands” for institutional change are coded as 1044; demonstrations, protests, etc. demanding such change are coded under category 14. Institutional change is different from policy change in that the former directly alters the rules of the game. Requests for fundamental changes in the political system (e.g. democratization) as well as for more limited institutional changes (e.g. changing electoral law) are coded here.
Example	President Emile Lahoud has pushed the Lebanese Parliament for a new election law two days before he is to call parliamentary elections.
Example	Scandal-plagued President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo on Monday urged Congress in the Philippines to change the constitution to shift to a parliamentary form of government to ease the country’s constant political instability.

CAMEO	025
Name	Appeal to yield, not specified below
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest that target yields or concedes; not otherwise specified.
Usage Notes	This event form is typically, although not exclusively, a verbal act. The source for this event type may or may not be one of the adversaries; a third party could also be appealing to one or more of the parties in conflict (who are coded as targets) to yield. When the source itself expresses its intent to yield—rather than requesting it from another party—the event should be coded under 035 instead. When yielding actually takes place, use the appropriate code under category 08.
Example	Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon wants Germany to pay more compensation to the families of 11 Israeli athletes killed at the 1972 Munich Olympic Games, a statement from his office said Tuesday.
CAMEO	0251
Name	Appeal for easing of administrative sanction
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest that target relaxes administrative restrictions.
Usage Notes	Use this code when a government is requested to undertake some political changes that clearly constitute some form of concession or yielding, such as relaxing or removing bans or other restrictions that are already in place.
Example	Dozens of journalists at Sudan's most respected daily newspaper appealed to the Sudanese government on Wednesday to let them resume publishing and compensate them for lost wages.
Example	Human Rights Watch also called on Yemen, Algeria and Malaysia to immediately lift bans on newspapers closed in recent days for printing the caricatures.

CAMEO	0253
Name	Appeal for release of persons or property

Usage Notes	Use this code for requests for the target to release prisoners, hostages, and any confiscated property.
Example	The United States called on Israel to move forward with its “courageous and historic” disengagement plan as fast as possible.
Example Note	While “disengagement” does not necessarily involve any kind of release of persons or property, in the case of Israel we can safely assume that any mention of the “disengagement plan” refers primarily to the withdrawal of settlements, hence, the return of land to the Palestinians; phrases involving “disengagement” or “settlements” can be entered into verb dictionaries, particularly the Middle East dictionary, as the appropriate codes pertaining to the release of property.
CAMEO	0254
Name	Appeal for easing of economic sanctions, boycott, or embargo
Description	Make an appeal for, request, or suggest that target stops or eases economic sanctions, boycott, or embargo.
Usage Notes	Use this code only for economic sanctions, boycotts, or embargoes.

Usage Notes	Requests for adversaries to allow mediation are coded as 028 instead.

Example Note	Because the identity of the agency is not provided, the general NGO code will be used.

CAMEO	0256
Name	Appeal for target to de-escalation of military engagement

CAMEO	026
Name	Appeal to others to meet or negotiate
Description	Propose or suggest meeting, negotiation, or discussion among other parties.
Usage Notes	This event form is typically, although not exclusively, a verbal act. The source for this event cannot be the actors whose meeting or negotiation is called for ; it has to be third parties who appeal to one or more actors—target actors—to meet and/or negotiate. When parties themselves express their intent to meet and/or negotiate, use 036 instead. When meetings or negotiations do take place, use the appropriate code under category 04.
Example	El Salvador on Monday requested an urgent Security Council meeting on Wednesday to deal with what it called violations by Nicaragua of the Central American peace accords.
CAMEO	027
Name	Appeal to others to settle dispute
Description	Propose or suggest that others reach a settlement, agreement, or resolution of conflict.
Usage Notes	This event form is typically, although not exclusively, a verbal act. Note that the source for this event cannot be the adversaries themselves . When one or more parties to a conflict call for ending the conflict, that is taken to be an expression of intent on the part of that source actor to reach a settlement and is thus coded as 037 instead.
Example	The Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov said here Saturday that he urges Iran and the EU trio (France, Germany, and Britain) to reach an agreement in their talks on Iran's nuclear program.
Example Note	Given the presence of four different targets, four events are coded.

CAMEO	028
Name	Appeal to others to engage in or accept mediation
Description	Propose or suggest that target mediates or accepts the mediation of others.
Usage Notes	This event form is typically, although not exclusively, a verbal act. Note that the source for this event cannot be the potential mediator or parties to the conflict . When an actor proposes to play the role of mediator himself, this is assumed to be a commitment on his part and is coded as 039 instead. When one or more of the adversaries request that another party plays the role of a mediator, this is understood to be a commitment on their part to accept mediation and is thus coded as 038. The target can either be a potential mediator (whose mediation is being requested) or one of the adversaries (who is requested to allow involvement of mediators).
Example	The International Crisis Group has called on the UN stabilization mission in Haiti to broker an agreement among Haitians that “establishes common objectives for the next government.”

Usage Notes	This category contains sub-forms for more detailed coding whenever possible. This event form refers to commitments or indications of intent by parties to boost their material exchange ; they could be reciprocal or unilateral agreements, promises, commitments, or other indications of intent to cooperate. Pledges to provide unilateral material aid, however, are coded under category 033. Expressions of intent to engage in or further diplomatic cooperation, such as negotiations, settling disputes, or provision of policy support are coded elsewhere under category 03. Note that events coded here are intents and commitments, and not actual events of cooperation, which should be coded under 06.

Commitments by adversaries to accept peacekeepers should be coded as 0355.
Example	France is ready to contribute up to 4,000 troops to an international peacekeeping force in Yugoslavia, Defence Minister Pierre Joxe said on Monday.

If there are specific groups or individuals asking for that change and that information is codeable given the structure of the lead, those actors should be coded as targets; otherwise, the country in general or actors to be affected by the change should be coded as the target.

CAMEO	0341

Description	Offer, promise, agree to, or otherwise indicate willingness or commitment to change leadership or relinquish power.
Usage Notes	Commitments to resign or hand over power, as well to hold elections that might open the way for change in leadership, are coded here. Note that while commitments for other forms of yielding are coded under 035, commitments to give up power are coded here.

CAMEO	036
Name	Express intent to meet or negotiate
Description	Offer, promise, agree to, or otherwise indicate willingness or commitment to meet, visit, or engage in talks or negotiations.
Usage Notes	This event code refers to future commitments to meet and/or negotiate; when meetings, negotiations, or other talks do take place, those are coded under category 04 instead. When mediation is mentioned specifically, appropriate mediation-related codes take precedence over meetings or negotiations.
Example	East German Foreign Minister Oskar Fischer will visit Albania in June, the first Warsaw Pact foreign minister to do so since Tirana split with Moscow in 1961, the Albanian embassy said.
Example Note	Given the wording of this lead, which implies that Albania has already committed to receive the German minister, two reciprocal events of 038 are coded with actors reversed. This example fits under this category since the future tense used implies a future commitment to meet.
Example	On September 29, Putin offered to negotiate with Chechen President Aslan Maskhadov following the invasions of Dagestan.
Example Note	Unlike the previous example, this lead does not suggest that Maskhadov has also committed to meeting with Putin, hence only one 036 event is coded with the Russian government as the source actor.

CAMEO	037
Name	Express intent to settle dispute
Description	Offer, promise, agree to, or otherwise indicate willingness or commitment to reach a comprehensive settlement, agreement, or resolution to conflict.
Usage Notes	Note that specific commitments to yield, which might be present steps to settling disputes, are coded elsewhere under category 03. Both the source and the target for this event type should be adversaries themselves. When other parties make appeals to end disputes in which they are not directly involved, use ‘Appeal to others to settle dispute’ (027) instead.
Example	Denmark today accepted a formula for ending its fisheries dispute with its European common market partners, government officials said.
CAMEO	038
Name	Express intent to accept mediation
Description	Offer, promise, agree to, or otherwise indicate willingness or commitment to accept mediation.
Usage Notes	This code represents adversaries’ commitments to receive mediation by third parties. The latter should be coded as targets, while the source has to be one or more of the parties in conflict for this event. Note that when reports involve references to mediation specifically, mediation-related codes such as this take precedence over others , such as ‘Agree to meet or negotiate,’ ‘Make a visit,’ ‘Host a visit,’ and ‘Meet at a third location.’ For commitments by third parties to mediate refer to code 039 instead. For simple suggestions by actors other than adversaries and potential mediators that mediation occurs, use ‘Appeal to others to engage in or accept mediation’ (028).
Example	Afghan rebel leaders said on Wednesday they would meet U.N. mediator Diego Cordovez if he gave them a veto over any settlement reached in peace talks.
Example	Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak has agreed to US mediation in the final status talks with the Palestinians, a senior Israeli official said.

CAMEO	039
Name	Express intent to mediate
Description	Offer, promise, agree to, or otherwise indicate willingness or commitment to play the role of a mediator.
Usage Notes	This code represents a commitment by third parties to mediate between parties in conflict. The former should be coded as source and the later as targets for this event. Note that when reports involve references to mediation specifically, mediation-related codes such as this take precedence over others , such as ‘Agree to meet or negotiate,’ ‘Make a visit,’ ‘Host a visit,’ and ‘Meet at a third location.’ For commitments of adversaries to accept mediation by actors other than the adversaries and potential mediators that mediation occurs, refer to ‘Appeal to others to engage in or accept mediation’ (028).
Example	Gambian President Dawda Jawara will visit Mauritania and Senegal to mediate in a border dispute between the two West African neighbors, diplomatic sources said on Wednesday.
Example Note	Given the wording used in this particular lead, which implies that Mauritania and Senegal have already agreed to Gambia’s mediation, two types of linked events are coded—‘Express intent to mediate’ (039) with the Gambian president as the source, and ‘Express intent to accept mediation’ (038) with Mauritania and Senegal as sources. Two different events are coded for each of these event types since Mauritania and Senegal are compound actors.
Example	King Hassan of Morocco was quoted today as saying he would be ready to host a meeting between an Israeli peace movement and the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).
Example Note	Unlike the previous example, this lead does not imply that either the Israeli or the Palestinian parties have accepted King Hassan’s offer to mediate, hence no ‘Agree to mediation’ event is coded. Given the compound target, two separate 039 events are coded.

2.4 CONSULT

CAMEO	040
Name	Consult, not specified below
Description	All consultations and meetings not otherwise specified.
Usage Notes	This residual category is not coded except when distinctions among 041 through 046 cannot be made. Note that events coded under 04 are typically, although not always, reciprocal events.
Example	A group of African diplomats held their first meeting with President Parvanov at a lunch hosted by the Ambassador of Kingdom of Morocco.
Example Note	This lead is coded as 040 since the place of the meeting is not explicit in the lead, hence we cannot code it as a visit made or hosted, and no negotiations are implied (so, we cannot code it as ‘Engage in negotiation’).

CAMEO	041
Name	Discuss by telephone
Description	Consult, talk on the telephone.
Usage Notes	This is typically a reciprocal event. The nature of the phone conversation is not of significance.
Example	U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher telephoned Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev on Tuesday to discuss efforts to forge a peace settlement in former Yugoslavia, Itar-Tass news agency said.
Example Note	Two events of the same type are coded with actors reversed.
CAMEO	042
Name	Make a visit
Description	Travel to another location for a meeting or other event.
Usage Notes	All visits and travels should be coded under this category. Note that this event is typically accompanied by the linked event ‘Host a visit’ (043). If mediation or negotiation is mentioned specifically as having taken place, those events take precedence over unspecified visits or meetings.
Example	Taiwan’s Vice Foreign Minister visited Russia today, becoming the island’s highest ranking government official to go there.
Example Note	Two events are coded: 042 with the Taiwanese government as the source and Russia as the target, and 043 with actors reversed.

Description	Meet, come together, gather with others at a neutral location—some place with which none of the attending parties are associated. If mediation or negotiation is mentioned specifically as having taken place, those events take precedence over unspecified visits or meetings.
Usage Notes	This event type is typically accompanied by two other linked events, ‘Make a visit’ (042) and ‘Host a visit’ (043), and the event itself is reciprocal. For 044, the source and the target are the actors who are meeting; the location of the meeting is ignored.
Example	U.S. and Soviet negotiators return to Geneva this week for talk on limiting the number of European-based nuclear missiles, an issue likely to dominate East-West relations this year.
Example Note	Six events are coded: two reciprocal ‘Meet at a third location’ events with US and the Soviet Union as actors; two ‘Make a visit’ events with Switzerland as the target, and the US and the Soviet Union as the two different sources; and two ‘Host a visit’ events with Switzerland as the source and the US and the Soviet as the two different targets.
CAMEO	045
Name	Engage in mediation
Description	Mediate between two or more parties.
Usage Notes	This event code should be used only when a party meets with others explicitly as a mediator. The source is always the mediator and adversaries are the targets. All other cases of meetings and negotiations, where the purpose of the meeting or the role of the source actor is not specified, should be coded elsewhere under category 04. If meetings, discussions, or negotiations are explicitly reported as involving mediators, the mediation code takes precedence as long as the party acting as the mediator is identified in the lead.
Example	Arab League Secretary General Chadli Klibi undertook mediation mission between Syria and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat.
Example Note	Because of the compound target actor, two events are coded.
Example	Qatar’s emir, Sheikh Hamad bin Khalifa al-Thani launched a mediation effort on Saturday between the Emirates and Saudi Arabia whose ties have been strained by Riyadh’s new friendship with Tehran.
Example Note	Because of the compound target actor, two events are coded.

Name	Engage in negotiation
Description	Negotiate or bargain with others.
Usage Notes	This event code should be used only when the report makes clear that negotiations, bargaining, or discussions are involved in the meetings or consultations in question. “Holding talks” and “discussions” are treated as negotiations. These are reciprocal events.
Example	Israel and Lebanon renewed negotiations today on an Israeli troop pullback from Lebanon and their future relations.
Example Note	Two 046 events are coded with actors reversed.
Example	French National Assembly president Laurent Fabius and a group of deputies held talks with leaders of Romania’s new government on Tuesday, the first high level Western delegation to visit Bucharest since last month’s revolution.

CAMEO	052
Name	Defend verbally
Description	Defend verbally, justify policy, action or actor.
Usage Notes	This event form is a verbal act. Use this code only for political, diplomatic, and non-material defense; military cooperation or defense should be coded elsewhere.
Example	The United States on Thursday defended the right of Soviet troops to fire protectively on militants in Azerbaijan and insisted unrest there reflected age-old ethnic tensions, not a fight for political independence.
Example	Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat defended Iraq and Libya on Friday against Western criticism of their arms industries and said the West was applying double standards on human rights.
Example Note	Because of the compound target, two events are coded.
CAMEO	053
Name	Rally support on behalf of

CAMEO	057
Name	Sign formal agreement
Description	Ratify, sign, finalize an agreement, treaty.
Usage Notes	This category excludes promises to sign or ratify agreements and treaties. Events should be coded under this category only when agreements are reportedly finalized or signed. This event code is typically reciprocal. Even when the agreement in question implies a formal commitment to boost material cooperation, provide aid, or yield in some way, the event of signing the agreement or treaty is still coded here since signing of an agreement or treaty represents diplomatic cooperation but does not guarantee implementation—whatever its terms.
Example	Libyan leader Muammar Gaddafi and Bulgarian President Todor Zhivkov today signed a treaty of friendship and cooperation, the BTA reported.
Example Note	Two reciprocal events are coded with actors reversed.

Name	Destroy property
Description	Use force to destroy, demolish property.
Example	Afghan guerillas blew up three main electric power lines leading into Kabul last month and nearly one third of the city's power supply is still down, the Czechoslovak news agency Ceteka reported from Kabul today.
Example	Jewish settlers in the West Bank city of Hebron set fire to the offices of the Palestinian administrators of Muslim property overnight following the killing of an Israeli man, Palestinian residents said Sunday.
Example	Israeli army bulldozers demolished Palestinian homes and civilian buildings in southern Gaza on Sunday, Palestinian officials and US witnesses said.
CAMEO	172
Name	Impose administrative sanctions, not specified below
Description	Formal decrees, laws, or policies aimed at curbing the rights of civilians not otherwise specified.
Usage Notes	This event form category contains sub-forms for more detailed coding whenever possible.
CAMEO	1721
Name	Impose restrictions on political freedoms
Description	Violate or impose limitations on fundamental political rights such as freedoms of speech, expression, and assembly.
Usage Notes	Restrictions on media and activities of political dissent are coded here. Note that if the event is about the actual enforcement of such restrictions through repressive tactics, such as imprisonments and dispersion of demonstrations, 175 should be used instead.
Example	The British government on Monday outlawed the largest Protestant extremist organization in Northern Ireland because of what it called its direct involvement in killing in the strife-torn province.
Example	Nicaragua's Sandinista government today ordered the opposition newspaper La Prensa to suspend publication indefinitely, a spokesman for the paper said.
CAMEO	1722
Name	Ban political parties or politicians
Description	Prevent establishment or activities of political parties or politicians.
Example	President Yoweri Museveni has banned Ugandan opposition candidates from participating in the upcoming elections.

CAMEO	1723
Name	Impose curfew
Description	Set a deadline beyond which inhabitants of an area are not permitted to be on the streets or in public places.
Example	Turkish authorities have imposed a curfew in the town of Cizre in southeastern Turkey after a demonstration over fraud allegations in Sunday's local elections, security sources said here Tuesday.
CAMEO	1724
Name	Impose state of emergency or martial law
Description	Suspend normal constitutional rights and provisions by installing state of emergency or military rule.
Example	The military government of President Prosper Avril declared a 30-day state of siege in Haiti on Saturday, suspending parts of the constitution and arresting political opponents, a spokeswoman for the U.S. embassy said.
CAMEO	173
Name	Arrest, detain
Description	Legal or extrajudicial arrests, detentions, or imprisonments.
Usage Notes	Use this code for both criminal and political detentions. Note, however, that taking of hostages is coded as 181 instead, and charges or lawsuits are coded as 115.
Example	Israeli soldiers arrested more than 100 Palestinians on Saturday in a security sweep of the Hebron area of the occupied West Bank, military sources said.
CAMEO	174
Name	Expel or deport individuals
Description	Formal removal or expulsion of individuals from territories, typically following legal proceedings.
Usage Notes	Expulsion of diplomats constitute reduction of diplomatic relations and should be coded as 'Reduce or break diplomatic relations' (161). Expulsion of peacekeepers, inspectors, or aid agencies refer to category 166. Mass political expulsions, with the purpose of ethnic cleansing for instance, are coded as 201 instead.
Example	Ghanaian authorities have deported 168 Liberians for traveling without proper documents on a Swedish-registered vessel, a port official said Monday.
CAMEO	175
Name	Use repression
Description	Actively repress collective actions of dissent by forcing subjugation through crowd control tactics, arrests, etc.
Usage Notes	Note the difference between repression of dissidents and military engagements.
Example	Liberian riot police used tear gas to disperse demonstrators protesting election results in Monrovia .

CAMEO	176
Name	Attack cybernetically
Description	Illegal or unauthorized attack on computers, networks, or accounts.
Usage Notes	Cyberattacks can be any of a wide range of acts, with an even wider range of motives. Vandalism of websites, theft of private electronic information, and the hostile shutting-down of networks all fit under this category.
Example	North Korea has tried to hack into the computers of South Korean army officers, officials said Tuesday.
Example	Muslim hackers angered by the publication of cartoons of the Prophet Mohammed have defaced nearly 3,000 Danish Web sites over the past month in the biggest politically motivated cyber attack long-time observers have ever seen.

2.18 ASSAULT

CAMEO	180
Name	Use unconventional violence, not specified below
Description	Use of unconventional forms of violence which do not require high levels of organization or conventional weaponry, not otherwise specified.
Usage Notes	Use this event form to code use of forms of force and violence that do not require high levels of organization typical of state-military establishments. Terrorist attacks, if not further specified, should be coded here. Use this default code also for use of knives, rocks and other such unsophisticated weapons. This residual category is not coded except when distinctions among codes 181-186 cannot be made.
Example	A temporary camp for Congolese refugees was attacked by Burundian militiamen armed with machetes , killing at least 156 people, the UN refugee agency reported.

CAMEO	181
Name	Abduct, hijack, take hostage
Description	Kidnap, take hostage, hijack, or forcibly seize control of an aircraft, car, bus, ship, etc.
Example	Afghan rebels have kidnapped up to 16 Soviet civilian advisers from a town bazaar and exploded a series of bombs in the capital Kabul, western diplomatic sources in neighboring Pakistan said today.

CAMEO	182
Name	Physically assault, not specified below
Description	Attack physical well-being of individuals without the use of weaponry, not otherwise specified.
Usage Notes	This event form category contains sub-forms for more detailed coding whenever possible. Beatings are coded here.
Example	Israeli soldiers routinely beat up Palestinian detainees on the occupied West Bank with the knowledge of senior officers, a court martial was told today.
CAMEO	1821
Name	Sexually assault
Description	Sexually abuse, assault sexual integrity of individuals.
Usage Notes	Use this event form to code rapes and other sexual assaults.
Example	U.S. border patrol agents sexually abused illegal Mexican immigrants with impunity, a human rights organization charged on Saturday.
CAMEO	1822
Name	Torture
Description	Torture, inflict extreme pain on individuals.
Usage Notes	The distinction between 1822 and the default code 182 depend primarily on the particular terminology used by reporters. This code is used typically when “torture” is mentioned in the lead.
Example	Security forces in Guinea have tortured scores of Sierra Leonean and Liberian refugees , whom authorities blame for a border conflict, Human Rights Watch (HWR) said Thursday.
CAMEO	1823
Name	Kill by physical assault
Description	Kill individuals by physically assaulting them without the use of weaponry, through beating, torture, lynching, etc.
Usage Notes	When a physical assault—beating, torture, lynching, etc.—is specifically mentioned to have caused death, this code takes precedence over other codes for physical assault.
Example	A Palestinian prisoner died as a result of torture while in Israeli police custody, according to a report by a pathologist sent to Israel by Physicians for Human Rights.
CAMEO	183
Name	Conduct suicide, car, or other non-military bombing, not specified below
Description	The use of explosive devices or improvised explosives outside of military engagements.
Usage Notes	This residual category is not coded except where distinctions among codes 1831-1834 cannot be made. Aerial bombings that involve the use of aircraft are coded as 195 instead.
Example	Irish nationalist guerrillas wounded two British soldiers in a bomb attack on Thursday, police said.

CAMEO	1831
Name	Carry out suicide bombing
Description	Carry out bomb attack with the intention of causing own death as well as other casualties.
Usage Notes	Not every attack that results in the assailant's death is necessarily a suicide attack; we rely on the terminology used by reporters to make that call—we code bombings as suicide bombings if the report identifies it as such.
Example	Two Palestinian suicide bombers killed 23 people as well as themselves late Sunday when they blew themselves up in Tel Aviv in the second-worst attack in the current Palestinian uprising, police said.
Example	At least three Iraqi civilians have been killed in a suicide car bombing in central Baghdad , Iraqi police said.

CAMEO	1832
Name	Carry out vehicular bombing
Description	Blow up a car or other vehicle to cause damage to surroundings.
Usage Notes	If a car bombing is also known to have been a suicide attack, the suicide component takes precedence and the event is coded as 1831.
Example	A prominent anti-Syria journalist has been killed in a car bomb explosion in a residential sector of mostly Christian eastern Beirut .

CAMEO	1833
Name	Carry out roadside bombing
Description	Detonate explosives on the roadside to cause damage and casualties to passers-by.
Usage Notes	These bombs or explosives are typically left along the roads by assailants long before they are detonated, hence reports of such attacks can rarely credibly identify the actors responsible for placing those explosives. Therefore, the particular locations of such attacks are typically coded as source actors.
Example	A roadside bombing near the town of Samarra on Sunday killed one U.S. soldier and wounded two others, the military said.

CAMEO	1834
Name	Carry out location bombing
Description	The use of pre-placed explosive device(s) with the intent of causing casualties and or/structural damage.
Usage Notes	The distinguishing factors for this code are the presence of placed munitions detonated either remotely or according to pre-set conditions (time, proximity, movement of the device, etc.). Suicide, vehicular bombing components, or roadside locations take precedence and are coded 1831, 1832 and 1833 respectively. Minefield casualties and the deployment of mines are specifically excluded from this code and are coded as 193 (Fight with small arms and light weapons) instead.
Example	Three US servicemen were killed by an improvised explosive device outside of the Iraqi city of Basra.

CAMEO	184
Name	Use as human shield
Description	Use civilians as buffer on the front lines or in other dangerous environments.
Example	The Sri Lankan army has been holding thousands of Tamil civilian refugees as human shields in the battle zones of the southern sector of the Jaffna peninsula, according to a press release by the Liberation Tigers.
CAMEO	185
Name	Attempt to assassinate
Description	Attempt but fail to kill politically significant and influential persons.
Usage Notes	Use this code only when an assassination attempt or targeted killing is foiled; when assassinations are successfully carried out, 186 is used instead. This distinction is made because consequences of these two types of events could be significantly different. The source of this event would ideally be the assailant; however, in many cases this information will not be available and the location of the attack would be coded as the source instead.
Example	An attempt to assassinate deputy governor of the Tyumen region , Oleg Chemezov, was thwarted in Khanty-Mansiysk (Siberia), the city's police reported.
Example	Militants loyal to Iraq's Al-Qaeda frontman Abu Musab al-Zarqawi said they attempted to assassinate outgoing Prime Minister Iyad Allawi , in a statement posted on the internet.
CAMEO	186
Name	Assassinate
Description	Kill politically significant and influential persons.
Usage Notes	Use this event form to code targeted killings and assassinations of politically influential elites or leaders.
Example	Hezbollah guerrillas killed the deputy chief of Israel's militia ally in southern Lebanon Sunday sources on both sides said.
Example Note	This example is coded as an assassination because of the position the victim held (which is explicitly reported).

2.19 FIGHT

CAMEO	190
Name	Use conventional military force, not specified below
Description	All uses of conventional force and acts of war typically by organized armed groups not otherwise specified.
Usage Notes	This residual category is not coded except when distinctions among codes 191-196 cannot be made. In addition to unspecified acts of fighting, “killings” of any kind when the weapons used are not specified should also be coded here. When news leads refer to acts of killing that take place during an attack or some form of military engagement as “murders”, those should still be coded here. However, murders in general—as criminal acts with no political connotations—are not coded under the CAMEO framework. The first example below illustrates how one can differentiate between these two different uses of the verb “murder”.
Example	One Serb policeman was murdered in an attack on a police patrol by Kosovo Albanians near the border with Kosovo, state agency Tanjug reported Sunday.
Example	Vietnamese and Kampuchean forces were battling for control of a strategic base near the border today, Thai military sources said.
Example Note	Two reciprocal events are coded with actors reversed.
Example	Palestinian gunmen attacked an Israeli village close to the West Bank Sunday and killed an Israeli, public television reported.
CAMEO	191
Name	Impose blockade, restrict movement
Description	Prevent entry into and/or exit from a territory using armed forces.
Usage Notes	Note that this event form is different from code 144 (‘Obstruct physically’), which refers to civilian protest activities that seek to disrupt routine and normal proceedings.
Example	Israel Friday reimposed blockades in the West Bank following the shooting deaths of two Israelis a day earlier, a military spokesman announced.
Example	The Soviet Union closed its southern borders with Iran and Turkey because of fighting between Azerbaijanis and Armenians, an editor at the official Armenian news agency said.
Example Note	Due to the compound target, two events are coded.

CAMEO	192
Name	Occupy territory
Description	Occupy, seize control of a territory using armed forces.
Example	Vietnamese-led forces have retaken a strategic village in Western Kampuchea after fierce fighting with guerrillas who overran it late last month, Thai military sources said today.
Example	Burmese troops have captured part of a Karen guerrilla stronghold on the Thai border after five days of fighting, Thai police here said on Monday.
Example	Israel today mounted its long-threatened invasion of South Lebanon , ploughing through the United Nations lines on the coast of south of Tyre and thrusting forward in at least to inland areas.
CAMEO	193
Name	Fight with small arms and light weapons
Description	Attack using small arms and light weapons such as rifles, machine-guns, and mortar shells.
Usage Notes	Small arms include revolvers and self-loading pistols, rifles and carbines, sub-machine guns, assault rifles and light machine-guns. Light weapons include heavy-machine guns, hand-held under-barrel and mounted grenade launchers, portable anti-aircraft guns, portable anti-tank guns, recoilless rifles, portable launchers of anti-tank missile and rocket systems, portable launchers of anti-aircraft missile system, and mortars of calibers less than 100 mm.
Example	Sudanese rebels shelled the southern regional capital Juba for the first time in a year on Sunday and Monday, killing about 20 people, relief officials in Nairobi said.
Example	Egyptian police opened fire to disperse Moslem fundamentalist demonstrators on Monday night, killing one person and arresting 12, security sources said.
Example	Serb forces killed three ethnic Albanians in a gunbattle in southeastern Serbia Friday, a political council representing ethnic Albanians in the region said in remarks published here Sunday.
Example Note	Note that because the type of weapon used is specified, this code is used instead of the default code 190.
Example	A minefield explosion near the town of Samarra killed two Iraqi youths and wounded five others on Sunday.

CAMEO	194
Name	Fight with artillery and tanks
Description	Attack using artillery, tanks, and rocket fire.
Usage Notes	Use this event form to code military engagements that involve the use of guns of large caliber that are too heavy to carry, such as cannon or missile launchers that are not portable, and tanks and/or warships. When both small arms or light weapons and heavy weaponry are used, this code takes precedence.
Example	Vietnamese-led forces launched artillery, mortar, and rocket fire against Kampuchean guerrilla camps near the eastern Thai border today, killing or wounding 50, Thai military sources said.
Example	Israeli tanks fired four shell bombs at targets in Jericho , witnesses said, in a rare incident in the West Bank city.
CAMEO	195
Name	Employ aerial weapons, not specified below
Description	Attack, bomb from air, not specified below.
Usage Notes	Use this event form to code bombings that involve the use of military aircraft. When both aerial and other small types of weapons are used, this code takes precedence. This residual category is not coded except where distinctions among codes 1951-1952 cannot be made.
Example	Soviet aircraft including helicopter gunships killed 46 Afghan civilians in an attack on a village in the western province of Heart.
Example	Israeli helicopters and tanks shelled positions of the Palestinian security forces and residential areas near the town of Rafah.
CAMEO	1951
Name	Employ precision-guided aerial munitions
Description	The use of aerial weapons that utilize internal and/or remote sensing and guidance controls to strike specific targets.
Usage Notes	The distinction between 1951 and the default 195 depends on whether the particular terminology used by reporters is indicative of guided or precision weapons. The weapons themselves must have guidance capability and should be differentiated from "surgical aerial attacks" which are otherwise coded under the default 195.
Example	British aircraft using precision guided missiles killed 4 Iraqis in an attack on a suspected weapons supply in Basra.

CAMEO	1952
Name	Employ remotely piloted aerial munitions
Description	The use of remotely piloted or unmanned aerial platforms for the delivery or ordinance.
Usage Notes	Use this event form to code aerial attacks that involve the use of unmanned or remotely piloted vehicles. This code takes precedence over the use of precision guided munitions (1951).
Example	Recent US Predator attacks, occurring about once every three days, have killed at least eight top al-Qaeda leaders since last July, according to Pentagon sources.
CAMEO	196
Name	Violate ceasefire
Description	Reinitiate fighting in the midst of a formal or informal ceasefire or truce.
Usage Notes	Regardless of how the ceasefire is broken and what kinds of weapons are used, all ceasefire and truce violations are coded here.
Example	Both the Phillippines military and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front are guilty of violating the ceasefire agreement signed in March 2001, according to a group that conducted simultaneous fact-finding missions in Lanao, Maguindanao, and Cotabato provinces last week.
Example Note	Two reciprocal events of the same type are coded.

2.20 ENGAGE IN UNCONVENTIONAL MASS VIOLENCE

CAMEO	200
Name	Use massive unconventional force, not specified below
Description	All uses of unconventional force that are meant to cause mass destruction, casualties, and suffering not otherwise specified.
Usage Notes	This residual category is not coded except when distinctions among codes 201-204 cannot be made.
CAMEO	201
Name	Engage in mass expulsion
Description	Force large groups of people or populations out of some territory.
Usage Notes	Note that this event form is different from expulsions of diplomats and international or non-governmental groups (166), and legal deportations (174). Mass expulsions coded here are typically carried out with the intention of clearing out a particular group of people out of a specific area.
Example	The Israeli army forced out on Wednesday more than 1,000 Palestinian refugees from their homes in a West Bank refugee camp during a 48-hour search for militants, residents said.

CAMEO	202
Name	Engage in mass killings
Description	Kill a substantial number of people, typically with the intention of ridding a territory of a particular group of people.
Usage Notes	Politically motivated mass killings and genocides are coded here, relying primarily on the specific terminology used by reporters to identify an event that involves “mass” killings.
Example	Sudan’s government is responsible for mass killings and other atrocities in the Darfur region, according to a United Nations report.
CAMEO	203
Name	Engage in ethnic cleansing
Description	Use mass expulsions and/or mass killings targeting a specific ethnic group.
Usage Notes	When a report identifies mass expulsions or mass killings as being motivated by ethnic cleansing, use this code instead. The only way we can code ethnic cleansings as such is only if reporters use that particular terminology; therefore, we will need to rely on careful analysis of our event data, whereby we would focus on particular dyads, to reliably measure ethnic cleansings.
Example	Serb forces were engaged in ethnic cleansing in Kosovo against the majority Albanian population of the province, according to the US government.
CAMEO	204
Name	Use weapons of mass destruction, not specified below
Description	Attack with unconventional weapons that are meant to cause massive destruction and casualties.
CAMEO	2041
Name	Use chemical, biological, or radiological weapons
Description	Attack using chemical, biological, or radiological weapons.
CAMEO	2042
Name	Detonate nuclear weapons
Description	Attack using nuclear weapons.

Chapter 3

ACTOR CODEBOOK

Actor and agent dictionaries are developed to systematically assign codes to names (of individuals, countries, identity groups, organizations, etc.) that refer to source or target actors in news reports. Several regional dictionaries have been developed within the framework of the CAMEO project. In addition to laying out the format and the rules that apply commonly to the creation of new codes in actor and agent dictionaries, this codebook documents the shared and region-specific actors that existed in the dictionaries at the time of this codebooks compilation (as well as some updates from subsequent revisions). It does not contain an exhaustive list of all agent and actor codes utilized in the various KEDS/CASCADE projects that make use of the CAMEO coding schemes. Coders who modify CAMEO or add new codes (not names, but general types) should record the changes made.

As projects have demanded more specificity from CAMEO codes, the complexity and length of CAMEO codes have increased. Early CAMEO codes may be simpler than strict adherence to the rules below would imply.

3.1 HIERARCHICAL RULES OF CODING

Actor codes are composed of a series of three-letter groups, written in the order pictured above. The length of the code given to any actor depends on the number of these groups applicable to an actor and necessary for the needs of the coding group, but TABARI currently limits the total number of characters to fifteen, i.e. five three-letter codes. Some actors may be deemed important enough to warrant a three character code unique to themselves, but most just use a combination of specific and generic codes.

Coding of any actor follows two basic rules:

1. Proceed from the general to the specific.
2. Maintain a consistent pattern (ideally the one above) in choosing the hierarchical placement of appropriate three letter classifications.

No actor will use all the categories listed, but rules and hierarchy provide the coder with a clearer path of how an actor’s coding scheme should break down and ensures some level of consistency across studies.

3.1.1 Domestic or International?

There are two types of actor in the CAMEO coding scheme: domestic and international. How an actor is coded depends on which of those types the actor is.

For a domestic actor, the first three characters of the CAMEO code indicate the actor's country. The United Nations list of standard three-letter country codes is used to identify countries. The current list, as well as a list of changed and added codes, can be found at the UN website (<http://unstats.un.org/unsd/methods/m49/m49.htm>). A list of UN country codes is also presented in Chapter ??.

Actors that cannot readily accept a single national identifier may instead take an international code. Different generic codes are used to differentiate between various kinds of international and transnational actors. IGO (international governmental organization), IMG (international militarized group), NGO (non-governmental organization), NGM (non-governmental movement), and MNC (multi-national corporation) are the main generic codes. They can either be used on their own or as the first three characters of more detailed codes. A few special cases—religious groups, ethnicities, and international regions—are handled as international actors but do not begin with international codes.

In addition, we have the code UIS (unidentified state actor), which is used when an actor is known to be a country or government—or it is known to act on behalf of a country or state—but the identity of the particular country is not revealed in the report (e.g. “foreign diplomat”). Similarly, if an international actor cannot be categorized for whatever reason, INT can be used as the last-resort, catch-all code. UIS and INT are typically used as three-letter codes on their own.

The following subsections describe how a domestic actor is coded, in order from left to right in the code. The differences for international codes are described in subsection 3.1.9.

3.1.2 Domestic Region

In countries with federal systems, autonomous regions, other forms of decentralization, or any other idiosyncratic facts that render regional distinctions politically significant, our codes link actors to sub-state regions as well as countries. Assigning actors domestic region codes (as the second three characters) allows researchers to code and study intrastate events which might have domestic as well as international significance. Sub-state codes are often essential components of a regional dictionary—the Balkans is one such case. Serbia during 2003-2006, for example, is assigned the code [SCGSRB], where SCG is the UN code for the state of Serbia and Montenegro and SRB denotes the Republic of Serbia, which was a sub-state entity within Serbia and Montenegro.

In some cases, we have assigned geographic regions within a country their own three character codes because the distinction was important for demographic or other political reasons, even though these regions did not have legal status. For Turkey, we have given Southeast Turkey its own code ([TURSOE]), which has allowed us to capture many domestic events (particularly between Kurdish insurgents and the Turkish state) that we otherwise could not. A comprehensive list of all sub-state region codes can be found in the respective region-specific sections of this codebook.

3.1.3 Primary Role Code

Generic role codes are assigned to actors in order to indicate their roles and statuses, when known and relevant, within their respective countries. They are appended to the initial country and regional codes.

A comprehensive list of generic role codes can be found in Table 3.1. We make a crucial distinction between primary, secondary, and tertiary role codes. Coders should use primary codes to identify the role of a domestic actor wherever reasonable; among those, GOV, MIL, OPP, and INS or SEP (formerly REB) are in fact the most commonly used.

REB has been, for most of CAMEO's history, the catch-all term for violent opposition groups. SEP and INS were added in late 2009, and they have more or less replaced that code for specific actors. However, REB still is used to code cases where a violent opposition group's aims are unclear, or where the group has very plainly limited goals (i.e. not involving separating from or overthrowing the government.) Also, older projects using CAMEO use only the REB code, and, depending on the project, coders may choose not to use SEP or INS. Coders should be sure, however, to distinguish between these kinds of actors and those assigned a secondary role code of CRM (see subsection 3.1.6). While CRM actors may utilize violent operations, they primarily exist for the purpose of achieving monetary profit or other self-gratification and not for the achievement of political aims through violent efforts.

UAF should be used as a last resort when an armed group cannot be identified either as MIL or REB. This situation tends to arise when the association of a given armed group with the state it operates in is unclear (e.g. whether it is an independent rebel group or a paramilitary), or the group is accepted but not controlled by the state. If the link between a paramilitary and a state is common knowledge, however, MIL should still be used—even though the group might not officially be part of the state military institution. The Serb Volunteer Guard, also known as Arkan's Tigers, for instance, should be coded as [SRBMIL].

Note that actor codes with domestic roles will often need date restrictions to reflect changing roles of actors through the span of the dataset. This is especially true when coding countries that experience frequent power changes. Section 3.2.1 details how such restrictions are added.

Table 3.1: Generic Domestic Role Codes

Primary Role Codes	Description

Tertiary Role Codes	Description
MOD	Moderate: “moderate,” “mainstream,” etc.
RAD	Radical: “radical,” “extremist,” “fundamentalist,” etc.

3.1.4 Party or Speciality (Primary Role Code)

The PTY (party) distinction is a special role code that comes after primary role codes but before anything else. Political organizations receive the designation PTY when they field candidates for local or national elections, they are considered legal/legitimate by the current political regime, and they are not, at an organizational level, armed or violent. Individuals receive the designation PTY if they are members of qualified political organizations but are not members of the national or local executive. The PTY designation, whenever possible, comes immediately after OPP or GOV. Whether a party is in opposition or government depends solely on whether it is a member of the executive at the highest level of government for which it fields candidates.

Alternatively, a second primary role code can be appended to the first to represent an actor's area of power or concern. This happens, for example, with secretaries and ministers of defence; though they are part of the government, they exercise control over military affairs and are thus coded [XXXGOVMIL]. This case is discussed in more detail in section 3.2.5.

3.1.5 Ethnicity and Religion

In the latest version of the system, we have a detailed, global classification system for both religious and ethnic groups: these are discussed in Chapters 10.0.4 and ???. These have not, however, been systematically incorporated into all of the dictionaries.

3.1.6 Secondary Role Code (and/or Tertiary)

If none of the primary codes applies to the actor in question, coders should choose from secondary role codes. Hence, for instance, a labor union would have the LAB code and a given journalist would have the MED code only if they cannot be identified as OPP. However, this restriction does not preclude the addition of secondary role codes to the primary code if such distinctions would be valuable to the coders. An opposition labor union, for example, would code as XXXOPPLAB.

Although we have a code for the legislative branch (LEG), it is identified as a secondary code and used sparingly. When a given legislative body is mentioned as an organization (e.g. the parliament, the House of Commons, the Senate), LEG is always used. When a particular political party or individual member of the legislature is in question, however, the convention has been to use GOVPTY or OPPPTY, depending on whether the relevant party has control of the executive branch. If the coders are more interested in the differentiation between the executive and legislative branches of a government or if control of the executive is separate from control of the legislature it may be more useful to code these actors as LEG.

Outside of religious applications, tertiary role codes should be used only as last resort. RAD captures ambiguous identifiers such as “radical,” “extremist,” and “fundamentalist” which can be encountered in news reports but do not refer to any systematically identifiable group or role. We felt compelled to create the code to systematize the coding of such ambiguous labels, the meaning of which could vary from reporter to reporter and across regions: Does the term “extremist” refer simply to the conservative nature of a group or does it imply that the group in question is armed and violent? In order to avoid bias and to ensure reliability, RAD (and not REB) should be used in such cases. For example, “extremist Serbian nationalist” should be coded as [SERRAD]. Similarly, MOD should be used when ambiguous identifiers such as “moderate” and “mainstream” are encountered.

3.1.7 Specialty (Secondary Role Code)

Secondary role codes can also be included in a CAMEO code to indicate an actor's specialty (much like in subsection 3.1.4). They can be added not only to primary role codes, but also to ethnicities, religions, or even other secondary role codes. For example, a legislative committee concerned with education would be coded as [XXXLEGEDU], while a Muslim student dissident would be [XXXOPPMOSEDU].

Tertiary role codes are used in this position as additional modifiers to facilitate the grouping of specific types of actors if one's analysis requires such a distinction, for example applying the designation of RAD to specific actors associated with known fringe or extremist groups. However, use of these codes should be driven by necessity, either because of the specificity required for the analysis or because of limitations in the source texts.

3.1.8 Organization Code

In cases where the coder wants to and can—given the amount of information available in the news lead—distinguish between different actors of the same generic domestic role, different groups can each be given their own three-character codes, which are then be used as the last three-characters. For example, the Likud and Meretz Parties in Israel are assigned the nine character codes of [ISRGOVLKD] or [ISROPPLKD] and [ISRGOVMRZ] or [ISROPPMRZ], respectively.¹

Organization codes, especially for IGOs and NGOs, restart the cycle of role codes. Hence, a subunit of the specially coded actor may receive a code for its specialty. For example, the High Commission for Refugees is a suborganization within the United Nations, which has a special actor code (IGOUNO). The High Commission's code is simply added onto the U.N.'s code, becoming IGOUNOREFHCR: "REF" for refugee, "HCR" as its own special actor code.

3.1.9 International Codes

International codes apply to all actors who identify with more than one state. Most international actors' codes begin with a generic international code.

Table 3.2 defines the major international codes, along with examples. Notice that some of these examples are simply assigned the three character generic codes, while others are further specified with both generic and specific codes.

The distinction between NGO and NGM is meant to capture the theoretical difference between well-structured, formal non-governmental organizations and anomic or non-associational social movements. Although the line dividing the two is often fuzzy, we believe that the distinction is theoretically important—perhaps more so for some research questions than others. Greenpeace, for instance, is one of those difficult cases: although it is typically thought to be an NGO, it actually functions more as a loose and informal movement with some more formal organizations, such as the Greenpeace Foundation and Greenpeace USA, associated with it.

The IMG code is intended to identify those non-governmental groups, organizations, and movements on the international or regional level for whom militarized operations are their primary means of interacting within the international system. The distinction between an IMG and a domestic rebel group can be subtle. We define a militarized group to be international only if both its goals and its activities are substantially international.

¹Note that both of these codes need to be date-restricted appropriately since their roles as 'government' versus 'opposition' change regularly. Also, the project using these codes predated the introduction of the PTY code; were they coded now, they would be [ISRGOVPPTYLKD], [ISROPPPTYLKD], and so-on.

Sometimes news articles refer to unnamed actors such as “human rights advocates,” “anti-WTO protesters,” and “supporters of Palestine”. Such actors are best coded as NGM since they clearly belong to some non-governmental collective effort but, at the same time, are not explicitly associated with specific organizations. “Aid workers,” on the other hand, are coded as NGOs, since participation in aid distribution generally requires an organization—even if the identity of the group is not specified in the news lead.

Some international actors do not always need a generic international code—namely, transnational regions, ethnicities, and religions. Moreover, the ordering and use of codes is slightly different for international actors than for domestic actors. We list these differences below.

Table 3.2: International/Transnational Generic Codes

Generic Code	Actor Type	Example	Full Code
IGO	International or regional Inter-governmental organization	“the United Nations” “World Trade Organization”	IGOUNO IGOWTO
IMG	International or regional International Militarized Groups	“al-Qaeda” “Abu Sayaaaf”	IMGMOSALQ IMGSEAMOSASF
INT	International or transnational actors who cannot be further specified as IGO, UIS, NGO, NGM, or MNC	“international envoy” “international observer” “world community”	INT INT INT
MNC	Multi-national corporations	“Halliburton” “multinational firm” “Shell oil company”	MNC MNC MNC
NGM	Non-governmental movements	“Greenpeace” “anti-WTO activists” “human rights advocate”	NGMENVGRP NGM NGM
NGO	Non-governmental organizations	“aid worker” “Amnesty International” “Red Cross”	NGO NGOHRIAMN NGOHLHRC
UIS	Unidentified state actors	“foreign diplomat” “world governments”	UIS UIS

Location Sometimes news reports do not specify a group of countries separately and instead refer to them using the general geographical region they are associated with, such as Latin America (LAM), the Middle East (MEA), Eastern Europe (EEU), etc. In such cases, where exact identification of the countries involved is not possible, international region codes laid out in Table 3.3 can be used as the first three characters, which then typically constitutes the entire code.

In some cases, actors are primarily transnational/international in nature, yet their country affiliations are also known. Coders can include both pieces of information by attaching country codes to the generic transnational/international codes. This could be particularly valuable if, given the research agenda, the country distinction becomes key at the analysis stage. (For example, actors with codes NGOUSA, NGMUSA, and MNCUSA can all be combined with other USA actors at that stage, while still preserving the full codes/information in the dictionaries for alternative groupings.) (See sections 2D and 2E.) Attaching the country code does not indicate that the actor is officially identified with or that he acts on behalf of that state. The same technique can be used when only a regional affiliation is known—NATO’s code, for example, includes “WST” to indicate that it is a Western organization.

Ethnic and Religious Codes Some ethnic or religious identity groups are not strictly associated with single countries, thereby requiring their own three character codes. These codes are assigned as the first three character codes when not explicitly linked to a specific location or country. Even groups connected to a country may not be domestic actors. Albanians are significant not only in the state of Albania but in other Balkan countries as well; therefore, when news reports specifically mention ethnic Albanians and not the state of Albania, we distinguish between the two by assigning the code ABN as opposed to ALB, which corresponds to Albania.

However, some international organizations have distinct ethnic or religious identities—especially IMG’s—in which case, an identity code can be used in conjunction with a generic international code and any number of other codes. Hence, Al Qaeda is coded as [IMGMOSALQ].

Role Code (Any) International organizations can be coded to show their composition, purpose, or area of expertise. For instance, a multinational media corporation would code as [MNCMED], with perhaps the interjection of the country where it is headquartered. Coders may use more than one role code, if they feel they must—only be sure to maintain the order of primary before secondary before tertiary.

Organization Code Some international/transnational actors get their own special three character codes (e.g. UNO for the United Nations, AMN for Amnesty International, IRC for the Red Cross), but these are used only as suffixes to these generic actor codes and any other specifying codes (i.e. [IGOUNO], [NGOHRIAMN], [NGOHLHIRC]). Table 3.4 lists such actors who are currently assigned their own special codes in our regional dictionaries; both regionally and globally relevant actors are listed, but note that this list need not be final and coders/researchers can give other actors their own codes.

As an exception, we also have a six-character generic code used for peacekeeping forces when the particular organizational affiliation is not known: IGOPKO. This code is assigned even when the national identity of the peacekeepers in question is specified. Hence, for instance, “Senegalese peacekeepers” are coded as IGOPKO since they operate as part of an inter-governmental organization and they might be representing the United Nations or ECOWAS.

Second Specialty and Suborganization Code Often, an important IGO or NGO, worthy of its own organization code, is actually part of another important actor (usually the United Nations). When this situation arises, the overarching organization is coded first, and the specialty of the suborganization (if there is one) is added on the end, followed by its specific code. For example, the High Commission for Refugees is a suborganization within the United Nations, which has a special actor code (IGOUNO). The High Commission’s code is simply added onto the U.N.’s code, becoming IGOUNOREFHCR: “REF” for refugee, “HCR” as its own special actor code. Be sure to avoid accidentally breaking the “primary before secondary” rule—the suborganization’s specialty cannot be a primary role code if the organization’s specialty is a secondary role code.

Third Specialty A third specialty code can occasionally be used when the spokesperson for an organization is identified (coded MED).

3.2 OTHER RULES AND FORMATS

3.2.1 Date Restrictions

Many actor codes require date-restrictions to limit the period for which TABARI will assign that code to the actor. The format of these codes do not deviate from the framework laid out below except for the inclusion of specific dates, which indicate the periods that correspond to each of the different codes. The need for date restrictions arise when the dataset covers a long period and the roles of individuals/groups/organizations—even the names and structures of states—change during this span.

Political power frequently changes hands in Israel. Hence, we cannot give the Israeli Labor Party, for example, a single code that specifies its domestic role. Instead, we code it as date-restricted, capturing when the party was part of the administration and when it played the role of opposition.²

ISRAELI_LABOR_PARTY [ISRGVLBA <770622] [ISRGVLBA 840814-861020]
[ISRGVLBA 920713-960618] [ISRGVLBA 990706-010307] [ISROPPLBA]

This entry indicates that the Labor Party acted as part of the Israeli government for all of the specified periods and as the opposition during all other times. Furthermore, due to its prominent role in Israeli politics, the party is given its special three-character code (LBA), which sets it apart from other opposition groups or coalition partners in case the researcher wishes to make that distinction at the analysis stage.

Even states sometimes need to be date-restricted when previously sovereign states (or parts of other states) merge (e.g., East and West Germany, North and South Yemen, and North and South Vietnam) or existing states breakup to create multiple new ones (e.g. Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, and Ethiopia/Eritrea). For instance, Serbia has the code which indicates that Serbia was part of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia up until it gained its independence in 1992, after which it formed the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (with Montenegro), which became the new state—a looser federation—of Serbia and Montenegro after February, 2003. On 5 June 2006, the union of Serbia and Montenegro was dissolved and they each became separate sovereign states.

For a more comprehensive explanation of date-restrictions, readers should refer to Chapter 5 of the TABARI manual (available at <http://eventdata.psu.edu/software.dir/tabari.html>).

3.2.2 Actors and Agents

TABARI makes use of two different types of dictionary in order to appropriately code sources and targets of event data. Actor dictionaries came first, containing singular pattern-matchable entries with specific actor codes. Each actor had to be given its own entry into the appropriate actor dictionary. In early 2009, this process was augmented by the creation and addition of agent dictionaries. Rather than list specific actors explicitly, the agent dictionaries use commonly recurring words to categorize actors and help alleviate the need for redundancy in the actor dictionaries. For example, the word “admiral” indicates that an actor should be classified MIL. Once ADMIRAL is added to the agents dictionary, TABARI will automatically add the code MIL to the end of the actor’s code in ²Recall that the project in which Israel was coded preceded the addition of the PTY code.

the output file when admiral is found near the actor's name. (This is subject to being overridden by specific entries in the actor dictionaries. For example, the entry `ADMIRAL_NELSON` would be read before the agent, allowing him to be identified as a historical figure, rather than a military actor.)

Actor entries take precedence over agent entries, as the actor codings are presumed to be more specific. Where the agent and actor codings would result in duplication of classifications, the duplicate is ignored. Therefore, if `ANTRIM` is in the actor dictionary coding as `[USAMIL]` and `ADMIRAL` is in the agent dictionary (coding as `[~MIL]`), then `TABARI` on seeing the actor "Admiral Antrim" will code the resulting as `[USAMIL]` and not `[USAMILMIL]`. `TABARI` does not combine agent codings. Hence, for example, while both "STUDENT" (coding as `[~EDU]`) and "DISSIDENT" (coding as `[~OPP]`) may be present in agent dictionaries, `TABARI` will not read "student dissident" as `[~EDUOPP]`. Instead, `STUDENT DISSIDENT` must be explicitly entered into the agent dictionary. This was done to avoid situations in which "student dissident" and "dissident student" would code differently (`EDUOPP` and `OPPEDU` respectively). Implementation of a hierarchical system for combining multiple agents into a single actor coding may be part of future implementations of `TABARI` as a further effort to cut down on the need for seemingly redundant dictionary entries.

3.2.3 Dictionaries

Currently the agent dictionaries are comprised of separate dictionaries for the `GOV`, `MIL`, `OPP`, and `REB` codes as well as a generic agent dictionary that handles references for secondary and tertiary role codes. As indicated previously there are also two agent dictionaries for the correct capture of religious codings (differentiated by their level of specificity). Additional helpful dictionaries to the coder are the `NGO` actor, the `Elite` actor, and the `IMG` dictionaries.

The elite actor dictionary has entries for a number of prominent organizations or individuals that would code with the `ELI` designation. Unfortunately most of the entries are specific to the US making it of limited value to those coding other regions. The `IMG` dictionary is a work in progress capturing actors that would be associated with several groups that fall under the `IMG` classification. In some cases only the name of the organization and known other appellations are listed but for some prominent members or leaders are also listed and provided with appropriate codes. For example "Osama bin Laden" is captured by this dictionary and assigned the appropriate `IMG MOSALQ` coding.

The `NGO` actor dictionary covers a wide variety of NGOs that a coder might want to capture. Rather than assign specific three character codes for every `NGO/IGO` efforts have been made to capture these actors with the appropriate International/Transnational actor code followed by a state or geographic region code (indicating either home country of the actor or primary region of its activities) and role codes (usually secondary) that indicate its primary area of expertise. Ethnic or religious identifications have also been captured where they were deemed appropriate.

3.2.4 Automatically-coded Celebrities

`TABARI` will code elites automatically in certain sentences. One will note that within the secondary role codes the code `ELI` specifically mentions former government officials. This is implemented within `TABARI` by recognizing that the word "former" as part of an agent or actor coding will cause the recognized pattern to be discarded in favor of the `ELI` secondary role code. Hence, "former Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan" will code as `USAELI` instead of `USAGOV`. Should `TABARI` fail at deleting double-codes, a Grep filter of the results can do the same task.

3.2.5 Coding Conventions

A number of examples have already been provided in the above sections but it seems worthwhile to point out a few additional as well as examples of coding conventions that can be utilized so as to standardize actor coding across coders.

One such convention is used to distinguish between various members of the US Department of Defense. Most actors in the Defense Department should be coded with the designation MIL followed by either SPY (if connected to military intelligence) or GOV if they are service specific or below (the Commandant of the Marine Corp or Secretary of the Navy for instance). All DoD personnel above this level that are responsible for policy setting code as GOVMIL as they are primarily associated with the government but their role within the government is military oriented.

Chapter 4

CAMEO Religious Coding Scheme

4.1 Introduction

CAMEORCS provides a greater level of detail for coding religion than the shorter CAMEO format by systematically assigning alphanumeric codes to individual religious groups and generalized religious terms. It was created during the summer of 2010 as a part of a larger, CAMEO-based project, and is thus intended as an optional supplement to CAMEO codes. The longer codes are used in actor codes in the exact same place and manner as the simple religious codes. Further, at every level of coding, CAMEORCS grandfathers in the religious codes used by CAMEO's shorter format.

The CAMEORCS directory includes a relatively comprehensive list of religious groups. However, projects may require adding more—and more specific—codes. Adding and coding new religious groups follows the same two rules from actor coding and adds two more.

- Proceed from the general to the specific.
- Maintain the hierarchical ordering prescribed by the manual.
- As far as it is possible, code religious groups by their defining and distinguishing characteristics.
- The manual describes which codes to prioritize; follow its prioritization.

CAMEORCS is restricted to three spaces (i.e. nine letters), so coders must be picky about which codes they use.

4.1.1 Self-Identification

CAMEORCS is not intended to be a grand theological treatise on who's who in the spiritual world. Coding must balance how a group regards itself and how it is regarded by others—especially its coreligionists. In the same vein, this scheme gives groups religious codes whenever plausible. Many organizations today have been called religious but do not regard themselves in this way. These groups nonetheless receive religious codes. Codeable groups include any organizations, communities, and fraternities based around a common philosophy, faith, or ethic. However, do not code religious groups that are dead during the time period of study.

4.1.2 Individualism

Each religious group, down to the lowest plausible level, is given its own distinct code. In addition, some relevant generic terms, e.g. "conservative Anglican", receive their own codes. However, the coder must choose the level of detail to which he or she codes—coding individual congregations would not be plausible. Consistency is not needed; for example, the original directory includes individual Catholic monastic orders, but only denominations (or even associations of national denominations) within Protestantism. In short, include everything worth coding.

4.1.3 Hierarchies

Often, groups would apparently take different code than the category above them. For example, non-trinitarian Christians are generally coded as CHRMAY, but a few trinitarian congregations nonetheless have constituent groups that are not. In this type of case, coherency may overrule accuracy; when a subgroup is accepted by its group, code it with that group.

4.2 First trio of letters

The first three letters of a religious code identify a specific religion or family of religions. Every religion that claims five million adherents or more receives its own code, as designated by prior coding (see Table 4.1.) Offshoots of a religion are given the code of their parent religion, unless they themselves have an individual code (e.g. Christianity, Sikhism, etc.)

Smaller religions are not given their own three-letter codes. Instead, they are categorized within families of religions. We use the common division annotated in the list below. A given religion may have strong influences from more than one of these families, in which case the coder must choose the best fit. Of the families of religions, new religious movements (NRM) hold a special place. They describe religious or philosophical movements, communities and companies created in the last century-and-a-half. The NRM code has lowest priority. For example, the code for a new Indian religious movement would begin with INR, not NRM.

Table 4.1: Religious Codes: First Three Letters

	Group/Religion	Code
First Priority: Named Religions	Atheism/Agnosticism	ATH

	East Asian religions	EAR
	Indian religions	INR
	Iranic religions	IRR
	Indigenous tribal religions	ITR
Third Priority	new religious movements	NRM

4.3 Second trio of letters

The second trio of letters divides the first category further.

4.3.1 Denominations

First, if the first trio is a named religion, the second trio can indicate a significant denomination or movement of that religion, e.g. Protestantism from Christianity, Shiism from Islam, or Zen from Buddhism. A complete collection of these codes can be found in the CAMEORCS directory.

4.3.2 Generic terms

Alternatively, the second trio can be a generic religious code. Such codes, listed in Table 4.2, simply serve to divide the first groupings into more manageable chunks, and generally apply across religions and family groups. These generic codes are ranked in priority in the table.

MAY, OFF, and NRM serve special roles within named religions, and we define them closely to handle delicate religious issues. MAY is used when a religious group considers itself a part of the parent religion, but the parent religious at least in large part rejects its inclusion. OFF applies to religious groups who do not consider themselves a part of the religion from which they are derived. (Whether the parent religion agrees is disregarded.) New religious movements (NRM) refer to movements that are widely regarded as being within the religion but outside any named subdivision, and were created in roughly the last century-and-a-half. Within religious families, NRMs have the same meaning as they would if used as the first three letters (see Section 4.2).

4.3.3 Generic, or Denominational?

Since CAMEORCS is designed to code actors, generic terms can sometimes override named denominations. Unitarian-Universalism, for example, comes from the Protestant tradition but does not self-identify as Christian—hence, it is only sensible to code it as CHROFF. The same phenomenon can occur with any generic codes that might describe heterodoxy, but it always occurs with OFF.

4.3.4 Region

For all indigenous tribal religions (ITR), the second set of letters should be a transnational region, taken from the listings in [the CAMEO actors manual]. Hence, indigenous tribal religions are organized by their geographic origins. This system will inevitably result in the occasional odd code, like [USAITRSEA###] (USA for United States and SEA for Southeast Asia), thanks to immigration.

4.3.5 Nothing

Finally, when there are no applicable specific or generic codes, the second trio can simply be left blank. Ecumenical organizations will usually skip secondary codes, as will general groupings like “conservative [religion]”.

	Group/Religion	Code

	wellness-centric	WLN
Fourth Priority	controversial status	MAY
Fifth Priority	new religious movements	NRM

4.4 Third trio of characters

[CAMEORC] codes are completed by a number between 001 and 999. Once again, some codes will skip this trio, namely general categories (“Protestant” as opposed to “Lutheran”). The earliest numbers in a set (001-009 or 001-099) are reserved for generic terms, e.g. “conservative” or “evangelical” or “moderate”, etc. The header of categories can describe both the group described and the mainstream of that group. For example, [CHRLDS000] refers to both any unknown group or person within the Latter Day Saints movement and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (e.g. mainstream Mormons, as opposed to splinter groups.)

After the generic terms, the numerical codes can be manipulated to form subcategories. For example, we divide Judaism in the tens column: Liberal Judaism is [JEW050], Neolog Judaism is [JEW060], Orthodox Judaism is [JEW070], and so-on. Subsets of Liberal Judaism would be [JEW051], [JEW052], [JEW053], etc. New Japanese Religions (which come from Shinto) are divided in the hundreds column, into Sect Shinto [SHNNRM100–200] and Shinshukyo [SHNNRM300–400]. Sect Shinto is then subdivided in the tens column, because it has relatively few subgroups, whereas Shinshukyo is divided in the singles column.

Initially, the religious directory has been arranged in alphabetical order (within subsets). However, when adding to the directory, add to the end of whatever category is desired. Creating an alphabetized directory of codes is a matter of a few minutes in Excel, whereas reconciling earlier work to a newly-numbered version of the coding scheme is much trickier. Thus, do not change the order of entries.

Giving an organization its own numerical code ameliorates the effect of coding mistakes and subjectivity. To use a silly hypothetical, suppose the dictionary writer were to mistakenly code Scientology as a form of Orthodox Christianity. In practice, so long as the codes are not combined in the analytical level, Scientology will be [CHRDOX###] (remember, this is a hypothetical!) and generic Orthodoxy will be [CHRDOX000]—so the two can be distinguished, and someone looking at the behaviour of the actors will see that the two are distinct (and potentially catch the miscode.) When in doubt, add a number!

4.5 Religion-specific coding issues

Religions tend to be as comparable as apples and oranges. As such, different religions are divided slightly differently, we list the major differences below.

4.5.1 Christianity

A coder must exercise considerable restraint in adding religious groups to the directory of Christianity - as a both institutionally fractious and very large religion, the number of identifiable Christian groups and denominations vastly outnumber the spaces available for coding. The MAY code sees extensive use in Christianity. We place groups in this category if they follow a non-trinitarian doctrine, worship their leaders, or add new scriptures to the Biblical canon.

4.5.2 Hinduism

Hinduism is rarely treated by scholars as a single religion, but instead as a group of related religions. Simultaneously, it may be plausibly divided by two methods: by denomination/deity or by philosophy. Hence, instead of denominations, Hinduism's named subcategories are purely taxonomical: HINAST for its Astika ("orthodox") schools, and HINDEN for its denominations. The hundreds place within these sectarians indicate which denomination or school is coded. Most Hindu organizations will be alphabetized within their denomination or philosophy, rather than placed under another level of hierarchy—the requisite information for coding often is absent.

4.5.3 Judaism

Judaism can best be divided into its movements. However, we also provide a section for the quasi-ethnic distinctions of Ashkenazi, Sephardic, etc. The former categorization always takes priority.

4.5.4 Shintoism

Shintoism was especially profoundly affected by the worldwide religious shift that started in the mid-nineteenth century, with hundreds of new religious movements being birthed since then. The standing of these organizations in regard to Shinto is not always well-defined. Rather than dividing these “Japanese new religions” into NRM, MAY, and OFF, we categorize them all as “NRM”.

Chapter 5

CAMEO Ethnic Coding Scheme

5.1 Introduction

CAMEOECS systematically assigns three-letter (lower-case) alphabetic codes to individual ethnic groups and generalized ethnic terms. It was created in 2011 as a part of a larger, CAMEO-based project, and is thus intended to serve as an optional supplement to CAMEO codes. The CAMEOECS directory includes a relatively comprehensive list of 603 ethnic groups; and a slightly less comprehensive list of each ethnic group’s primary countries of settlement. CAMEOECS is distinct from CAMEORCS in that (i) religious groups are not treated as ethnic groups by CAMEOECS (unless there is a clear ethnic dimension) and (ii) the group entries within CAMEOECS are non-hierarchical.

The three primary components of CAMEOECS are Ethnic Group Names, Ethnic Group Codes, and Selected Countries. Ethnic Group Names reports the most common English-language name of each ethnic-group entry in CAMEOECS. Ethnic Group Codes provides a unique three-letter (lower case) alphabetic code for each ethnic group entry included within CAMEOECS. Selected Countries lists the primary countries of settlement (by UN Country Code) for each ethnic group included in CAMEOECS. What follows is a more detailed description of each of these three components, as well as a discussion of the coding decisions that were used to create each.

5.2 Identification of Ethnic Groups

To create a comprehensive list of ethnic groups, CAMEOECS drew from two primary sources: (1) the International Organization for Standardization’s (ISO) Codes for the Representation of Names of Languages (ISO-639.2; <http://www.loc.gov/standards/iso639-2/>) and (2) the Ethnic Power Relations (EPR) dataset 3.1 (<http://www.epr.ucla.edu/>). The creation of a CAMEOECS ethnic groups list from these two sources unfolded in the following four steps:

1. First, the subset of all ISO 639.2 Languages that corresponded to specific ethnic groups were identified, and this list was then used as the baseline-set of ethnic groups for inclusion in CAMEOECS.
2. ISO 639.2 Languages that did not correspond to a specific ethnic group were discarded. Examples of ISO 639.2 Languages that were discarded include language-entries that were determined to be extinct (e.g. “Phoenician”), artificial (e.g. “Klingon”) or representative of general language families that encompassed multiple ethnic groups (e.g. “Baltic languages”).

3. The ethnic groups included in the EPR 3.1 dataset were then matched by hand to the verified, ISO-639.2-derived baseline-set of ethnic group (described in step one).
4. After this matching exercise was completed, roughly 200 additional ethnic groups were found to uniquely exist within the EPR 3.1 dataset, and these groups were then added to the matched CAMEOECS ethnic group list to create the final CAMEOECS list of ethnic groups.

Altogether, this coding scheme identified 603 unique ethnic groups.

5.3 CAMEOECS Components

5.3.1 Ethnic Group Names

Each CAMEOECS ethnic group identified through the process described above was then assigned a unique Ethnic Group Name for identification and referencing purposes. These Ethnic Group Names, which appear in Table 5.1 below (column one), report the primary English name of each CAMEOECS ethnic group entry. An ethnic group’s “primary” name is defined as that group’s most commonly used name within modern (spoken) English. In order to systematically determine each ethnic group’s most common (spoken) English name, an ethnic group’s default Wikipedia (<http://www.wikipedia.org/>) name entry was used as its primary Ethnic Group Name. As a result, many of the Ethnic Group Names that are used in Table 5.1 differ from the names given to these “groups” by ISO 639.2 (which instead lists the “English Name of Language” corresponding to each groups) or by the EPR 3.1. Where applicable, alternative (English-language) ethnic group names—based largely on the EPR 3.1’s ethnic group name(s)—appear in parentheses after the primary Ethnic Group Name in Table 5.1 (column one). Note however that these alternative spoken-English Ethnic Group Names are by no means comprehensive. Lastly, in instances where more than one ethnic group was found to use the same primary Ethnic Group Name, groups are distinguished by the inclusion of their region of settlement within their Ethnic Group Name.

5.3.2 Ethnic Group Codes

In addition to an Ethnic Group Name, each ethnic group entry in Table 5.1 was assigned a unique three-letter (lower case) alphabetic actor-code (column 2), hereafter referred to as Ethnic Group Code. Ethnic groups were assigned unique Ethnic Group Codes based either on (i) an ethnic group’s three letter (lower case) ISO 639.2 Language code (in cases where ethnic groups were found to have a matching ISO 639.2 Language in Step 1 of section 5.2 above) or—in instances where ethnic groups did not have a matching ISO 639.2 Language code—(ii) a mnemonically assigned three letter-code derived from that group’s Ethnic Group Name. Regarding case (i), several ISO 639.2 Languages have two unique ISO 639.2 Language code entries—one for bibliographic purposes and one for terminology purposes—and in these instances the bibliographic ISO 639.2 codes were used for Ethnic Group Name. Regarding case (ii), care was taken to ensure that the mnemonically assigned Ethnic Group Codes did not conflict with any existing ISO 639.2 Language codes; including the ISO 639.2 codes for ISO 639.2 Language entries that were discarded in in Step 2 of section 5.2 above (i.e. extinct, overly general, or artificial ISO 639.2 Languages). Note that as a result of this latter consideration, some ethnic groups were assigned mnemonic Ethnic Group Codes that were not the “ideal” mnemonic abbreviations of their corresponding Ethnic Group Name. In sum, the Ethnic Group Codes in Table 5.1 perfectly correspond to ISO 639.2 Language codes in instances where CAMEOECS ethnic groups have matching ISO 639.2 Languages, and distinctly correspond to newly created, mnemonic codes in instances where CAMEECS ethnic groups did not have existing ISO 639.2 Language entries.

5.3.3 Selected Countries

Selected Countries reports the primary countries of settlement for each ethnic group entry in Table 5.1. A “country of settlement” is defined as any country where an ethnic group is deemed to be politically relevant (based on the EPR 3.1’s definition of political relevancy) or have a sizable population (roughly greater than 1,000 ethnic group members).¹ Selected Countries are listed in Table 5.1 by (comma-separated, alphabetized) United Nations Country Codes (as defined in Table 9.1), and were collected from two primary sources.

First, all of an ethnic group’s countries of relevance (for years 1946-2005) were identified within the EPR 3.1. If a country was indicated as being a relevant for a given ethnic group—for any year within the EPR 3.1’s 1946-2005 sample frame—it was added as a Selected Country for that ethnic group’s entry in Table 5.1 below. While the EPR 3.1 deems some countries to be relevant to specific ethnic groups in some years but not others, the goal of CAMEOECS is to capture every country where an ethnic group could potentially be active, and therefore the EPR 3.1’s year/relevance constraints were not applied to a given ethnic group’s Selected Country listings below. Note that not all ethnic groups included within CAMEOECS had a matching EPR 3.1 entry, and accordingly, the use of EPR 3.1 countries of relevance in coding Selected Countries applies to some CAMEOECS ethnic groups but not others.

Second, ethnic groups’ Wikipedia entries were used to assess these groups’ “regions of significant populations.” Where these regions were listed with specific population numbers, any country with greater than 1,000 members of a given ethnic group was included as a Selected Country for that ethnic group in Table 5.1. Note that this coding scheme has a moderate bias towards large developed countries with significant histories of immigration (e.g. Australia, France, the United States of America). For Wikipedia entries that did not report specific population numbers, or that did not contain a “regions of significant populations” section at all, any country included on that ethnic group’s Wikipedia page was added as a Selected Country for that group. Note that, irrespective of whether a given ethnic group had a “regions of significant populations” section or not, Wikipedia entries for ethnic groups were often incomplete and are thus likely missing many countries with significant populations of CAMEOECS ethnic groups. Selected Country is therefore very much a work-in-progress. Also note that the use of ethnic groups’ Wikipedia page entries to code Selected Countries was applied both to groups that had no relevant-country entries in the EPR 3.1 and to ethnic groups with relevant countries listed by the EPR 3.1. Regarding the latter, there was often a high degree of correspondence between the countries listed under Wikipedia and those included in the EPR 3.1. However, when additional countries were listed in one source but not the other, these additional countries were always included within Selected Countries, so as to create the most compressive list of ethnic groups’ countries of settlement as was possible at this time.

¹According to the EPR 3.1. codebook (pg. 2), “An ethnic category is politically relevant if at least one significant political actor claims to represent the interests of that group in the national political arena, or if members of an ethnic category are systematically and intentionally discriminated against in the domain of public politics. By ‘significant’ political actor we mean a political organization (not necessarily a party) that is active in the national political arena. We define discrimination as political exclusion directly targeted at an ethnic community thus disregarding indirect discrimination based, for example, on educational disadvantage or discrimination in the labor or credit markets.”

This listing now includes generic role codes however only the individual role codes are listed not the various permutations of actor and role codes. Therefore AGR (indicating an actor concerned with the field of agriculture) is listed but there are not separate listings for each XXXAGR where XXX represents a unique actor code.

ISO-3166 Codes

The following table lists the ISO-3166-Alpha3 codes, which are the core of our state-level coding system. To translate between these and various other coding systems, you can use

- `CountryInfo.txt`, which contains ISO-3166 numeric, alpha2 and alpha3 codes, FIPS-10 code, IMF code, COW alpha and numeric codes, <http://eventdata.psu.edu/software.dir/dictionaries.html>
- Vincent Arel-Bundock's `countrycode` package for R includes a set of regular expressions which can be used to match country names in character strings to country codes, <http://cran.r-project.org/web/packages/countrycode/index.html>
- `kountry` Stata module by Rafal Raciborski, <http://ideas.repec.org/c/boc/bocode/s453301.html>

Chapter 10

Regional Dictionaries

At various points in the KEDS project we developed dictionaries focused on specific geographical regions. We currently have three main regional dictionaries—the Middle East, the Balkans, and West Africa. We have also developed a unique, separate dictionary for Turkey. In addition to following the same format and rules, these dictionaries also have a chunk of entries—actors and corresponding codes—in common. Most countries and major international actors, for instance, are found in all of the dictionaries. They differ from each other only in that each contains additional entries that are relevant only for the issues and the countries in that particular region; the difference occurs because we develop separate dictionaries—verbs and actors—for each region using leads relevant for that region. However, because the creation of dictionaries is systematic and consistent process, the regional dictionaries can be compared and merged at any time to build comprehensive main dictionaries. (We do merge our dictionaries periodically; hence, the initial dictionaries we use in our regional dictionary developments were at one time created from the merging of a number of smaller and more regional dictionaries.) The following sub-sections describe and list the special actor codes—those that have special suffixes attached to make them more specific than the generic codes, as well as the special group identity codes—that are found in respective dictionaries.

A major difference that sets the actors dictionary for Turkey apart from our other actor dictionaries is its incorporation of idiosyncratic codes—typically dealing with generic agents who are assumed to be Turkish (see Table 10.4)—that make the dictionary unsuitable for use in coding other countries. Its merging with other dictionaries would therefore require the elimination of certain entries. See the sub-section on Turkey for more details.

Note that the actual dictionaries are much longer than what are listed in this codebook; what is listed here are the codes that one encounters in our dictionaries or in the output at the analysis stage, and not all the entries that correspond to each code. In many cases, domestic actors are also simply assigned generic codes (such as country or identity code plus the domestic role code) when they are entered in the dictionaries. It is only when one wants to make a distinction between different actors with the same generic code—for instance, between two or more coalition partners in a government—that special codes are created. It is important to continually update this codebook and include new special codes, if any are created; otherwise, the analysis stage would be complicated since what the different codes refer to will not have been documented (except in the dictionary itself).

10.0.4 Ethnicity and Religion

In the regional dictionaries, some identity groups are specifically identified as residing in particular countries, generally explicitly (e.g. “Canadian Tamils” or “Christians in Baghdad”). In such cases, religious/ethnic identity codes are added to the country codes (e.g. HRVSER for ethnic Serbs living in Croatia).

These identity codes can in some cases also be composed of six letters, instead of three. For example, the code for the Druze is MOSDRZ, and when an actor is specifically known to be a Lebanese Druze, then the code becomes LBNMOSDRZ. In instances where the actor is known to be religious in nature (such as a reference to priest, monk, abbot, etc.) but the religious affiliation is not identified the Generic Religious (REL) code should be used. Lists of such identity codes exist in Tables 10.1 and 10.2.

The original religious codes were adapted from HURIDOCS but are very general and give uneven levels of specificity. We eventually intend to replace this with the far more detailed religious group classification in CAMEORCS (Chapter but the older system will be found in many of the regional dictionaries).

By convention, ethnicity always precedes religion in a CAMEO code.

10.0.5 The Middle East

The Arab-Israeli conflict, particularly the conflict between Israel and the Palestinians, has been our primary focus in coding the Middle East. Hence, our dictionary is most developed with respect to domestic political actors in Israel and Palestine. As part of a separate project, we have also extensively coded Algeria, and the actors dictionary from that project has been merged with our Levant dictionary. We started coding Turkey using this more general Middle East dictionary. Due to the presence of idiosyncratic codes, we have not merged the actors dictionary we developed for Turkey back into this dictionary; this could still be done, however, selectively.

Table 10.3 shows a list of the actors with special codes in the Middle East dictionary. Note that because of the dynamic nature of the domestic positions of many of these actors (for instance, an opposition party yesterday but a government coalition party today), many are date-restricted, so that the domestic generic codes that specify their positions can vary depending on the date of each news report. 'd.r.' refers to 'date-restricted'; for the exact dates refer to the dictionary itself.

While the code PSE (UN code) refers to the Occupied Palestinian Territories of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, PAL refers to Palestinians as an identity group. Therefore, Palestinian government and other state actors are coded as PSEGOV, PSECOP, etc. depending on their respective roles. The Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO), however, is coded as PALPLO as it represents the Palestinian people in general; because of its unusual status, the PLO could not be assigned one of the generic domestic role codes. The organizations underneath the PLO are each assigned codes based on their spheres of influence. Hence, Yasser Arafat and Fatah are date restricted as PALPLO before the Oslo Accords of 1993-which marked the establishment of the Palestinian Authority-and as PSEGOV thereafter. (Fatah itself is in fact further specified as PSEGOVFTA.)

10.0.6 Turkey

As mentioned above, CAMEO's actor dictionary for Turkey is unique in that it includes idiosyncratic codes which require that it not be used without certain modifications when coding other countries. The reason is that it gives vaguely identified actors codes that identify them as actors associated specifically with Turkey (even if the information is not explicit in the new leads). For example, "rebels" who are not further specified are coded as `TURREB` and "soldiers" similarly unspecified are coded as `TURMIL`. We were able to do that since Turkey was the only country included in that project and it was the only country listed in our search string for news leads; we could reasonably assume that the insufficiently specified actors we come across would in most cases be associated with Turkey.

Table 10.4 shows a list of these unique codes which are present only in our special actors dictionary for Turkey. Note that because TABARI gives precedence to longer patterns over less specified, shorter entries, when news leads further specify the identity of these actors and they are entered into the dictionary as such, these idiosyncratic codes are trumped. For example, "Kurdish rebels" are coded as `KURREB` and "Iraqi police" is coded as `IRQCOP`.

In the context of Turkey, "village guards" refer to Kurdish locals in Southeast Turkey recruited by the military to fight Kurdish guerrillas, mainly the rebels associated with the Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK)—coded `TURREBPKK`. Hence, although they are not officially associated with the Turkish state and the Turkish military, village guards are coded as `TURMIL`; this is how we would code state-sponsored paramilitaries.

We also deviate from the normal CAMEO protocol in coding what are called "State Security Courts" (Devlet Guvenlik Mahkemeleri, DGMS) in Turkey. Until June 1999, these courts included military judges and were commonly regarded as being controlled by the Turkish Armed Forces. Therefore, although court systems are typically coded as `JUD` (or `TURJUD` in case of Turkey), we code "State Security Courts" as `TURMIL` for dates prior to 990618. These courts were finally abolished in May 2004.

Unlike Table 10.4, Table 10.5 presents a list of special actor codes which could be integrated into other dictionaries. Again, note that what is listed here are the codes that one encounters in the dictionary or in the output at the analysis stage, and not all the entries that correspond to each code. The key for coding Turkey is to get the date-restrictions right; with the exception of post-2003, the multi-party period in Turkey has been marked by short-lived coalition governments and frequent elections. Furthermore, the banning of political parties and their rebirths with slightly changed names have been commonplace in Turkey, thereby requiring date-restrictions to null-code closed parties.

Also, while Turkey is a unitary state and there was little legal basis for giving geographic regions or cities their own special codes, it proved essential to introduce certain regions and cities as different actors in order to facilitate the coding of domestic contentious politics events.

¹DEHAP and HADEP are in fact different political parties, both representing the Kurdish opposition in Turkey. DEHAP, which later joined DTP in 2005, is seen as the continuation of HADEP, which was banned in 2003.

10.0.7 West Africa

In addition to coding West Africa in general with CAMEO, we also coded Liberia and Nigeria for separate projects. Therefore, the West Africa dictionary is most developed for these two countries. Also, because of the level of political decentralization and the importance of intra-state ethnic interactions in these countries, numerous special region codes have been developed particularly to represent the federal states within Nigeria and the counties of Liberia. The domestic region codes for Nigeria are listed in Table 10.6 and those for Liberia are listed in Table 10.7. Note that some of these regions, such as the Niger Delta Region in Nigeria, do not constitute legal boundaries but still represent politically important divisions within their respective countries.

Other region-specific special codes are listed in Table 10.8. Ethnic groups are coded as six character codes if the exact location of the actors is not specified: the Ogoni people of Nigeria, for example, are coded as `NGAOGO` as long as the news report does not associate the actor with a more specific region within the country, but as `NGAABUOGO` if the specific actor in question is identified as being from Abuja. The same applies to other ethnic groups and other regions. Note that most of the political and militant groups and organizations in this region are not being assigned special codes; this is not because they are not important enough to warrant special codes, but because the first six characters are typically the codes for the country and the region/the ethnic group (`NGAHAU`, `NGAAGU`, `LBROGO`, etc.), and the last three characters are then generally used to specify the roles of the actors. For example, the O’odua Peoples Congress (a Yoruba rebel group) in Nigeria is assigned the code `NGAYRBREB`—Nigeria, Yoruba, rebel group—which is not a special code (i.e., any Yoruba rebel group would be assigned the same code). Also, note that only a few of the special political organization codes are date-restricted; this reflects the current state of the dictionary, but this could, and should, change as coding continues and the roles of these actors change.

10.0.8 The Balkans

Our focus in coding the Balkans has primarily been on the conflict and conflict resolution events during the first half of 1990s. The Balkans actors dictionary is, therefore, most developed with respect to ethnic and territorial divisions (as opposed to specific political parties or organizations).

The Former Yugoslavia

The state of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia disintegrated by 1992 with the breaking away of its constituents republics, eventually forming the states of Slovenia (UN code SVN), Croatia (HRV), the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (MKD), Bosnia and Herzegovina (BIH), and Serbia and Montenegro (SCG).

Bosnia and Herzegovina, created with the Dayton Agreement of 14 December 1995 which brought three years of civil war to an end, has a federal structure that consists of two republics: the Bosniak/Croat Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina (BIHBHF) and the Bosnian Serb Republica Srpska (BIHSRP). Generic role codes (such as GOV, MIL, OPP, etc.) for actors associated with BIHBHF and BIHSRP become the last three characters of the actor codes. In order to differentiate between the states/republics and the people as ethnic groups, Bosnian Muslims are coded as BIHMOS (not BIHBHF), Bosnian Croats as BIHCRO, and Bosnian Serbs as BIHSER (not BIHSRP). More generally, CRO and SER refer to Croat and Serb ethnic groups. If an actor with a given ethnicity is associated with either one of the federal units specifically, the ethnicity code can be attached to the six-character unit code (e.g. BIHBHFSER). Generic role codes (such as GOV, MIL, OPP, REB) can also be used as the last three-character.

After the fellow constituent republics of Slovenia, Croatia, Macedonia, and Bosnia-Herzegovina declared independence in 1991, Serbia and Montenegro—the remaining federal states of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia—formed the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (then UN code FRY). On February 4, 2003, however, a new constitution was accepted, abdicating this self-proclaimed successor to the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and replacing it with a loose federation called Serbia and Montenegro (UN code, hence the CAMEO code, becomes SCG). The new federation consisted of the two states of Serbia (SCGSRB) and Montenegro (SCGMTN), as well as the two autonomous provinces of Kosovo (SCGKSV) and Vojvodina (SCGVVD). With Montenegro's unilateral declaration of independence on 3 June 2006, followed by Serbia's declaration on 5 June 2006, SCG also ceased to exist and gave way to two independent states: MTN and SRB (with SRBKSV and SRBVVD as autonomous provinces).

Note that the state of Serbia has a code that is different from that of the ethnic group of Serbs, who might or might not be living in Serbia. When an actor is associated with the ethnic group of Serbs and its country of origin is not specified, the actor is assigned the code SER; if the Serb in question is associated with a certain location such as Bosnia-Bosnian Serb—then the code becomes BIHSER (not BIHSRB or BIHSCG). The same rule applies to the other ethnic groups.

A more comprehensive list of major actor groups in the region and their respective codes can be found in Table 10.9. Note that actors with generic codes are not listed; the point here is to document the different codes—not to list all actor entries, which would mean replicating the whole dictionary—that exist in the dictionaries so that codes which show up in the output can be easily identified during analysis. Actors listed in the last group are derivations of different ethnic groups living in different countries. This list is not exhaustive; those listed here are meant as examples of how state/country codes and codes for ethnic groups living in those countries are merged to create special group codes.

SUPPLEMENTS

11.1 Actor Coding Cheatsheet

Sarah Stacey,
KEDS Project Coder

- Underscore, underscore, underscore.
- Never use “a”, “an”, or “the” in the beginning of an entry in the actors dictionary.
- When entering just a name (e.g. `KOFI_ANNAN`) without a job title (specifying organization, ethnicity, etc.), always date restrict! The entry `U.N._SECRETARY_GENERAL_KOFI_ANNAN` does not require a date restriction, because you can assume he is `[IGOUNO]` by definition.
- Do not use only first or last names such as `ROBERTS` or `ABDULLAH` that can be confused with other actors. In 99% of cases, you need to use the full name and/or attach the title (for example, `SAUDI_KING_ABDULLAH`).
- Remember to include all information given.

GOVERNMENT_OWNED_BUSINESS [~GOVBUS]
MILITARY_COURT [~MILJUD]
STATE_OWNED_NEWS [~GOVMED]

- Use your judgment on when one identity supersedes another.

AMERICAN_U.N._OBSERVER [IGOUNO]
FIJIAN_PEACEKEEPING_SOLDIER [IGOPKO].

- Dont confuse ethnicity with territory. Be careful with `[PAL]` vs. `[PSE]`, and `[ARB]` vs. `[MEA]`.
- Dont be fooled when the title is not in the code.

ARAB_ALLY_JORDAN [JOR]
ARAB_CAPITALS [MEA]

- Any political party should be opposition or government with date restrictions. This also goes for Labor and Communist parties (not [LAB] OR [CMN]).
- When entering nouns and adjectives, only add an “s” if necessary. For example, never add “negotiations”, but rather “negotiation” so that you do not have add it again when the singular form comes up.
- Never inject your own bias.

EGYPTIAN_FUNDAMENTALIST_GROUP [EGYMOSRAD] ; 7/17/01

This entry assumes that all fundamentalist groups in Egypt are also Islamic.

11.2 Ten (or Eleven) Commandments on Verb Phrases

1. There are some verbs that innately express intent such as plan, prepare, promise, pledge, vow etc. But most all others, like “provide” or “sign”, need a WILL, IS_TO_ etc. in order to code in the [030]’s to differentiate between events that have taken place and those that have not. Instead of individualized codes for each, use brackets to cover your bases:

ACCEPT

- { WOULD | IS_TO_ | WILL } * MEDIATION [039]

(Express intent to mediate)

2. When there is a formal agreement between two actors that describes a specific form of cooperation, always be as specific as possible, instead of always coding it as [057:057].

SIGN

- % * MILITARY ACCORD [062:062]

It is most accurate to say the parties are engaging in military cooperation.

3. Only use the code [139] (give ultimatum) if cannot you specify another type of threat:

ATTEND

- WILL_NOT_* TALKS UNLESS +

In this case, use [134] (Threaten to halt negotiations) instead of [139].

4. Codes such as RECEIV → + * SUPPORT FROM $ produce miscodes because they can be so many different ones: [070], [051], etc. Add (the minimally needed number of) words to give such vague phrases context.

RECEIV

- + * FINANCIAL SUPPORT FROM $ [071]

5. Especially with problematic verbs like strike, always be sure to include necessary contextual information.

SAID WOULD * AGAINST +

This could be [138] (threaten with military force) or [133] (threaten with political dissent). Instead, make the code

SAID WORKERS WOULD GO_ON_* AGAINST + [133]

to erase the ambiguity.

6. Restoring diplomatic relations is coded as [050:050] (Engage in diplomatic cooperation), but establishing diplomatic relations is coded as [054:054] (Grant diplomatic recognition).
7. When Peacekeepers arrive and are received, it is a reciprocal event: [074:0861].
8. Use [175] (Use tactics of violent repression), instead of [173] (Impose curfew), for events where protesters/demonstrators/etc. are arrested, as we are capturing the fact that the government is using repression to restore order.
9. Adding nouns as verbs gets messy. Try to avoid this at all cost.
10. When in doubt, consult the CAMEO or TABARI codebook!
11. Whenever sensible, file a verb pattern under the first verb to appear in the pattern. The first verb in a pattern is almost always the conjugated verb.

ATTACK

- PROMIS TO_*

- * TO_ATTACK

These two verb patterns are essentially identical—there’s no reason to have both. However, the second is preferable, because it will be read first in a sentence. Hence, if we have the sentence “Gondor promised to attack Mordor with tanks”, and the verb pattern

PROMIS

- * TANKS [1384]

the second verb pattern will overwrite the third, but the first pattern will not.
